Rescuers Fear 2nd Avalanche

Halt Search for 96 Buried in Alps

By GEOFFREY ATKINS

SAAS FEE, Switzerland, (AP) — The threat of a second avalanche halted rescue efforts today for 96 power project workers reported buried — and feared dead — under a huge mass of ice in the Swiss Alps.

More than 1,000 rescue workers evacuated the disaster scene after the Allalin Glacier began cracking shortly after dawn.

A dull rumbling sound swept through the valley. Warning sirens sounded.

The giant glacier split Monday and sent millions of tons of ice and rocks crashing down on the power project site.

Found 6 Bodies

With the threatened new icefall, rescue workers scurried from the danger zone. They had made little headway hacking at the icy debris despite an all night effort, during which they recovered only six bodies.

Scientists at the scene said the cracked parts of the glacier might have to be loosened with mortar shells before digging could be resumed.

Officials said it may take up to two months to recover all the bodies.

20 Injured

About 20 of the construction workers were injured.

"There's no hope for the men under that mass," said one rescue worker. In some places, the rubble of ice and rocks lay more than 100 feet deep.

The avalanche struck near Saas Fee, a ski resort in southern Switzerland less than five miles from the Italian border.

The mass buried men, machines and barracks at the Mattmark power project near the resort.

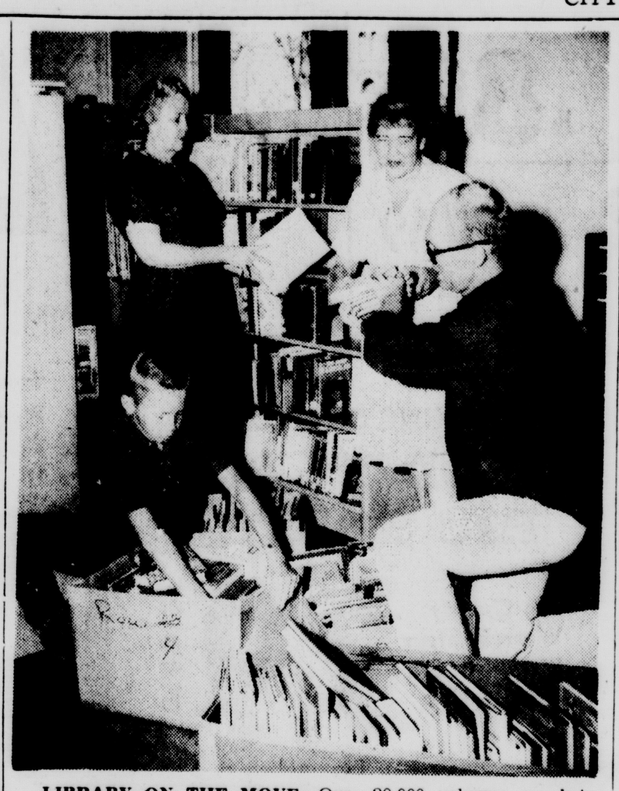

Some of the ice blocks were as large as two-story houses.

One witness said the avalanche struck so quickly that the workmen, mostly Swiss and Italian, "were buried without even looking up."

1,000 on Scene

Officials said about 1,000 workers were on the 6,000-foot high site when the bottom half of the Allalin Glacier, one of Switzerland's biggest, suddenly broke away, sending millions of tons of ice and rock cascading onto the construction site. The dam itself was saved by an avalanche corridor which channeled most of the tumbling ice past it.

The avalanche occurred shortly before dusk, 30 minutes before a change of workers' shifts.

LIBRARY ON THE MOVE—Over 20,000 volumes are being moved and shifted at the Kingston Library as the children's collection is installed at the Kingston Lions Club children's library and the rest of the library's collection is adjusted. Helping with the moving operations are (l-r) Mrs. Mabel Markle, children's librarian; Gary Barten, a Boy Scout and one of the several volunteers; Mrs. Harold Davis, library trustee and Don Sager, library director. To save funds, volunteers and all library staff members shifted an estimated 15 tons of books and scores of pieces of furniture. The library reopens on Thursday. (Freeman photo)

Break in Tradition Today

Southern Schools Are Desegregated Quietly

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

School desegregation, spreading rapidly across the South, calmly became reality today in the heart of Alabama's black belt. The significant break in tradition occurred quietly at Hayneville High School.

Four Negro pupils entered the school at Hayneville while a silent group of 25 white spectators watched nearby. One of the Negro pupils rode a bus with white children.

The peaceful desegregation followed the pattern of other schools in Alabama and the South. Thousands of Negroes went to school Monday with white pupils.

Same All Over

Hayneville, about 20 miles southwest of Montgomery, was like any other desegregated school in the South despite recent racial troubles. Throughout the region Monday, the story was the same.

There was no trace of the violent, bitter resistance of earlier years as the trend of quiet change, indicated last year, became a clear-cut pattern in rural and urban areas alike Monday. Few, if any, incidents were reported in the South, and it appeared the era of racial segregation in schools was coming to an end.

Indicative of Change

Indicative of the change was Mansfield, Tex., which became a Southern symbol of resistance to school integration less than a decade ago when whites staged mass protests to integration. All was quiet Monday as about 70 Negro junior and senior high school students attended desegregated classes.

"We did not have nor did we expect any trouble at all," said Supt. Willie Pigg.

Some schools already had begun classes. Many others opened Monday, and others will begin classes during the next two weeks.

No Incidents

Desegregation of South Carolina's schools spread to several urban areas with no incidents as about 900 Negroes were added to previously white classrooms.

In Barnwell, S.C., six Negroes were turned down when they were informed that no transfers would be permitted pending acceptance of the district's school desegregation plan. But in another Barnwell County school district, Blackwell, four Negroes entered white classrooms.

In Arkansas, 11 formerly white districts admitted Negroes for the first time. More of the state's districts are scheduled to drop racial barriers as the week continues.

In Atlanta, Ga., where school desegregation began in 1961, two children of integration leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. enrolled at a previously white school along with three children

Beame Says Fair Was Mismanaged During 1st Year

NEW YORK (AP) — A preliminary audit by City Comptroller Abraham D. Beame accused the New York World's Fair today of poor financial management in its first year.

The report, issued 10 months after Beame demanded an audit of the fair, said a switch in bookkeeping systems turned a $12.7-million surplus reported a year ago into a $17.6-million deficit reported last Dec. 31.

Fair President Robert Moses replied that if anything was obstructing progress at the fair, it was the work of Beame's auditors and not fair officials.

Moses said the two-year fair, which climbed over the 16 million mark in 1965 attendance Monday, "has done more for New York than any comparable event in three centuries."

Attendance in 1964 was 27.1 million. Before the fair opened, officials estimated it would draw 40 million persons the first year and 30 million the second.

After it failed to reach the first year's goal, the attendance estimate for this year was placed at 37.5 million. The fair closes Oct. 22.

Beame is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for mayor of New York and the audit has become a political issue. He was challenged to issue it last week by City Council President Paul Screvane, Beame's principal opponent for the nomination.

$5 Million Estate

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)— Harold S. Kuhns, 80, former chairman of the board of Xerox Corp., willed the bulk of his estate, unofficially estimated at $5 million, in trust to his wife, Gladys F. Kuhns.

Kuhns joined the Haloid Co. in Rochester, now Xerox, as a salesman in 1936. He became board chairman in 1960. He retired in 1961 and died July 3 in Philadelphia, Pa., where he was visiting.

IBM Not Going On Six-Day Week, Officials Claim

A report that the local IBM plant was about to go on a six-day work week was called "unfounded" yesterday by a spokesman for the plant. Reports had been circulated to the effect that the plant "was going on a six-day week."

A spokesman at the plant stated that the rumor was unfounded and that "some manufacturing departments" would be called upon to work overtime. Need for the extra time, which will not involve office employes, will be required in certain departments involved in the new IBM System 360 computer production. Work will be on an "overtime" basis and not on a six-day work week basis, it was stated.

West Will Seek GOP Nod For Woodstock Supervisor

Republican Town of Woodstock Councilman William R. West Jr., this week announced that he will seek the GOP nomination for town supervisor in the Sept. 20 Republican Caucus to be held in Town Hall.

Incumbent Supervisor Abram F. Molyneaux (R) in mid-July confirmed that he would not be a candidate for reelection. He has held the office for the past six years.

With Family Firm

West has been associated with William E. West Inc., public works general contracting firm of Woodstock for the past 14 years. His term as town councilman expires in January.

Three names have been prominently mentioned as possible Democratic nominees for the supervisor's post.

They are Peter W. Rakov, president of Woodstock Democratic Club; Irving Kalish, area realtor, and F. William Sheehan of Mt. Tremper, who recently terminated his service with the Veterans Administration in Albany.

Charles Tiano, Kingston Freeman sports editor and secretary of Ulster County Democratic Committee, a three-time unsuccessful candidate for the post, earlier declared he would not seek the nomination.

Democratic Caucus

The Town Democratic Caucus is scheduled Friday, Sept. 17 at 8 p. m. in the Town Hall.

Prominent in civic and political community activities, West is vice president of Woodstock Library Association; a past chairman of the Christmas Eve Community Program; former vice president of Ulster County Young Republicans; former president of Woodstock Jaycees, and a member of Woodstock Republican Club.

He attended local schools and graduated from Kingston High School and State University College, Oswego. During World War II, he served in Italy with the U. S. Army.

He and his wife, the former Mary Cole and two children Jeffrey, 15, and Allison, nine months, reside at Tinker Street.

Cooper, Conrad Talk to Experts On Space Whirl

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Astronauts L. Gordon Cooper Jr. and Charles Conrad Jr., their hearty appetites gradually regaining the weight the pair lost during an epic eight days in space, huddled today with technical and medical experts who sought to learn everything possible about the flight of Gemini 5.

Meanwhile, two other astronauts, Walter M. Schirra Jr. and Thomas P. Stafford, were busy preparing for Gemini 6, less than two months away.

Cooper and Conrad flew to the Cape Monday from the aircraft carrier USS Lake Champlain. They had been ferried to the carrier by helicopter after splashing into the Atlantic Ocean at the end of their record mission.

Exacting Tests

The astronauts immediately were hustled to a medical facility for exhaustive tests which did not disclose any adverse symptoms.

Dr. Charles A. Berry, Gemini flight surgeon, reported the pilots were in extremely good physical condition. He said examinations would continue for weeks in case something shows up later.

Berry said Cooper had gained back 6 of the 7½ pounds he lost during the flight and Conrad 4 of the 8½ he lost. Cooper weighed 152 and Conrad 154 just before launching. Berry attributed the loss to dehydration.

Big Meals

The gain is credited to ample Navy chow aboard the carrier and a trencherman's menu on shore. For lunch Monday the astronauts had big helpings of macaroni and ham. For dinner it was steak, baked potatoes, string beans and blueberry pie.

Berry said preliminary results indicate man has nothing to worry about medically on short flights to the moon. Eight days is the time planned for the first U.S. manned lunar landing trip in 1969.

Medical and technical reviews will continue at Cape Kennedy until Thursday, when Cooper and Conrad will fly to the Manned Space Center at Houston, Tex., for seven more days of the same.

Cooper said of the extensive briefings:

"We hope it will improve the quality of later flights."

Against Reception

Several things went wrong on the Gemini 5 journey. Although the pilots and ground controllers were able to overcome them, engineers don't want them to repeat.

The space agency has placed Cooper and Conrad in seclusion for 11 days. There is a chance they might briefly meet their families when they fly into Houston Thursday. A Cooper-Conrad news conference is scheduled there Sept. 9.

Experts want the time to wring everything they can about the flight from the pilots. The experts said that valuable information was lost after the Gemini 4 flight because astronauts James A. McDivitt and Edward H. White II were whisked too soon into the whirl of triumphal ceremonies, visits to the White House, Paris and their home towns.

Joining in Week

The Titan 2 booster rocket for the Gemini 6 flight, scheduled Oct. 25, was erected on a Cape Kennedy launching pad Monday. The spacecraft will be joined with it in a week or so.

The spacecraft is perched atop a 50-foot wooden tower in an isolated area of Cape Kennedy. Its nose is pointed at the Agena satellite which Schirra

Frost Plagues Farmers Again, Warmer Tonight

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Unseasonable frost added to the woes of drought-stricken eastern New York farmers today for the second day in a row. A warm-up tonight, with rain, was forecast.

But hay, tomatoes, beans, squash and other crops blessed earlier this month with much-needed rain already were stricken in some areas by the cold of the last two days.

The Weather Bureau's official overnight lows dipped to 34 at Oneonta and Glens Falls, 35 at Massena, 37 at Albany and Plattsburgh, 38 at Newburgh and Poughkeepsie, 39 in Suffolk.

75 Protest Construction Of Complex in West Hurley

Some 75 persons representing the newly formed Tanglewood-West Hurley Civic Association appeared before the Hurley town board Monday evening to protest the erection of a large multiple-housing complex on Tanglewood Road.

Milton and Marvin Gordon who propose to erect the 100 family apartment complex attended the meeting and Marvin Gordon outlined the project.

It was explained that a study was now in progress by the engineering firm of Brinnier and Larios of Kingston to ascertain water and sewage conditions. Preliminary plans for the 100 apartment complex are now being prepared by a New York City architect firm but no specific plans have been prepared pending completion of the study of water and sewage conditions, Milton Gordon stated today.

"Our plan is to comply with all state and county sanitary regulations in regard to water supply and sewage disposal and we will work in cooperation with local authorities in regard to adjacent water supplies. We have no desire to hurt anyone in the area and will comply with all state and local building code regulations," Gordon stated.

Garden Style

The plan calls for a garden type complex, air conditioned with a recreation complex which will include the present swimming pool, tennis courts which will be flooded in winter to provide skating and other recreational facilities. Gordon stated that they planned to make these recreation facilities available to residents of the local area at a nominal fee. The apartment complex will be set "well back from the road and we will maintain our present rustic character" of grounds, Milton Gordon said.

After discussing the proposal it was moved that the owners of Tanglewood Lodge, Marvin and Milton Gordon, supply the town board with plans of any proposed multiple - apartment complex and on motion of Councilman George F. Schroder it was moved that after the proposed plans have been received, a special public meeting be called to consider the plans.

Supervisor Charles Relyea moved that the Planning Board, Zoning Board of Appeal and a representative of the Ulster County Board of Health attend the special public hearing on the proposed plan.

Objection Stated

Objection to any large apartment complex on Tanglewood Road, Town of Hurley, was voiced by the Civic Association in a petition which stressed their objection on the grounds of water, sewage, traffic, taxes and schools as they would be affected by such an area development.

Harry F. Edinger, director of Environmental Sanitation, Ulster County Health Department, who attended the meeting, stated in effect that the Tanglewood area is rather poor type of drainage land and that a study of the area disclosed that lots of some 33,000 or 34,000 square feet, or

Schwenk congratulated the Army on its "many years of service to the citizens of Kingston" and went on to support Sen. Dirksen's recent congratulatory address signifying the 100th anniversary of the Salvation Army. Said Sen Dirksen, "The solace given to millions of persons through the past 100 years has been a service not only to help others, as individuals, but also to help communities and nations. I pay tribute to these outstanding servants of God and man." Schwenk endorsed the speech Monday at City Hall. (Freeman photo)

To Step Up Role of B52s

2 Suspected Viet Cong Concentrations Hit

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) — Strategic Air Command B52 bombers from Guam hit two suspected Viet Cong concentrations tonight in South Viet Nam, a U.S. military spokesman said.

One strike by the huge eight-engine planes was made on Quang Tin Province, 320 miles northeast of Saigon. The other was carried out in the Communist stronghold called Zone D, 30 miles north of the capital in Bien Hoa Province.

The raids were the 15th and 16th made by B52s in the Vietnamese war. The same areas were hit by SAC bombers last weekend. It was disclosed Monday that the role of the B52s would be stepped up sharply.

Clash With Cong

In another development, a government unit clashed with Communist guerrillas 175 miles northeast of Saigon in Dar Lac Province, the spokesman said. Ten Viet Cong were reported killed and two captured in the action.

Government forces retook an outpost 330 miles northeast of Saigon that had been overrun in the night and set ablaze by the Viet Cong.

Casualties to the regional force company defending the post were described as moderate. Viet Cong casualties were not known.

Troops Flown In

The outpost of An Hoa, about 10 miles west of the city of Quang Ngai, was reported by air observers to be burning shortly after it was hit and overrun. Vietnamese reports had said it was estimated that a battalion of Viet Cong had launched the attack, but this number was not confirmed.

Troops were lifted in by helicopter shortly after noon and reoccupied the post 330 miles northeast of Saigon, the spokesman said.

A belated report disclosed that the Viet Cong hit a government convoy Monday about 140 miles northeast of Saigon and inflicted what were called light casualties on Vietnamese government troops.

Raised Tugboat Now in Drydock; To Be Repaired

The tug Vegco, from which all eight local crewmen were saved when she sunk Friday in the Welland Canal at the Great Lakes, has been raised and is now in drydock at Port Weller, Ontario.

Bernard A. Feeney, treasurer-secretary of Reliance Marine Transportation & Construction Corp., 613 Abeel Street, said today that the tug owned by the Barge Vegoil Corp., an affiliate of Reliance, will be towed by one of the local tugs to a drydock in Jersey City, N. J., for repairs.

The 82-foot tug, manned by an eight-man crew from the Kingston area, sank in 30 feet of water two minutes after it was rammed in the stern by a freighter which also entered the lock.

The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority announced Sunday that it was necessary to empty the lock of 20 million gallons of water to remove the sunken tug. The Welland Canal is the

Machione Likely Choice As Carroll's Successor

Alderman-at-Large Joseph F. Carroll Jr., due to leave the city, will not be available for the Sept. 7 meeting of the Common Council and Mayor John J. Schwenk has called a special meeting of the council for Friday night to accept his resignation and to elect a successor.

The meeting is scheduled for 9 p. m. instead of the usual 7:30 because some aldermen will not be available on Friday until that time.

At Training School

Carroll, who has been with the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company since April, 1963, was promoted last month to a managerial post in the company's Mohawk District at Schenectady. He is now attending a special training school in New York, and is due to leave here early in September.

It is expected that the council will pursue normal procedure and elect Majority Leader John Machione (R) 12th Ward as Carroll's successor, and Edward J. Schrowang (R) First Ward, appears to be the choice to succeed Machione as majority leader until the end of the year. Schrowang is not a candidate for re-election. George Margolis is the GOP choice in the ward for the November election.

Makes Good Record

Carroll, before joining Metropolitan, had been self employed. He had achieved an outstanding sales record with the company during the past two years.

Born in Springfield, Mass., he was raised in Kingston. He attended St. Joseph's School and is a graduate of Kingston High School. He has served as city chairman and county co-chairman for the Muscular Dystrophy fund, and business and industry chairman for March of Dimes

Keep Talks Going, His Direction

Mansfield Points To Strike Costs

By NEIL GILBRIDE

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, who won an eight day postponement of the steel strike threat Monday night, kept up the pressure for a settlement today in his weekly meeting with Democratic congressional leaders.

The party chiefs from the Capitol came out of the breakfast session reporting that the steel situation came in for extensive discussion, and urging that the negotiators stay in session as long as necessary to reach agreement.

They made their remarks to newsmen shortly after representatives of the AFL-CIO United Steelworkers union and 10 major firms that produce 80 percent of America's steel had gone back to the bargaining table near the White House.

Should Remain

"Management and labor should stay in Washington until this matter is settled," said Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana.

And, echoing sentiments stated by House Speaker John McCormack, Mansfield expressed hope that steel mills will remain in operation even if a settlement is not reached before the expiration of the eight-day grace period.

Would Hurt War

Both at home and abroad, Mansfield said, "there is too much at stake which the country will have to pay for if there is one" — a strike.

Both McCormack and Mansfield said any strike would affect not only the domestic economy, but to some extent, the war in Viet Nam.

Mansfield said directly that if a new contract is not arranged during the eight days, he would hope the negotiators would "keep the mills going and continue the bargaining."

"They (negotiations) will continue, hopefully, until a settlement is reached," said White House press secretary Bill D. Moyers.

Less than eight hours after the negotiations were shifted Monday from Pittsburgh to Washington at Johnson's request, agreement was reached to postpone the strike deadline from 12:01 a.m. Wednesday to 12.01 a.m. Sept. 9.

Sure of Awareness

"I am sure that as they return to their negotiations, they will be aware of the importance of

Asks Aid for 10 More Counties to Battle Drought

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—More federal aid was sought today for farmers in 10 drought plagued New York State counties.

In a telegram to U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman Monday, Gov. Rockefeller asked that the Livestock Feed Program be activated.

Under the program, farmers in 13 counties already are eligible to buy federal surplus grain at 75 per cent of the price support to feed dairy cows, breeding cattle and sheep.

In Washington, meanwhile, a House Public Works subcommittee approved a measure Monday that would authorize the Army Corps of Engineers to draft a long-range water resources plan for the Northeast.

The survey would cover the six New England States, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia and would study:

— Construction, operation and maintenence of major reservoirs in river basins that drain into the St. Lawrence River, Lake Ontario, the Atlantic Ocean and Chesapeake Bay.

— Construction of aqueducts to transfer water from one river basin to another in times of drought.

— Water purification facilities.

The counties listed in the governor's telegram were:

Play Different in Duplicate

By JACOBY & SON
1965 Vanderbilt Cup Winners
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

We aren't showing the East and West hands today because we want you to study the play at three no-trump from both rubber bridge and duplicate standpoints.

West opens the three of clubs and after you play low from dummy East wins with the king and returns the eight. Your nine is covered by West's ten and you go up with dummy's ace.

Some players will have no problem. They will just play out high spades. If the spades break they will make 10 easy tricks. If someone is unkind enough to hold four spades against them they will complain about bad luck.

Good rubber bridge players will also have no problem. They will concede a spade trick to the enemy by playing a low spade first. This will cost them an overtrick if spades break. It will guarantee the contract for them against four spades in either hand and one trick is a cheap price to pay for insurance.

How should a winning duplicate player handle the spade suit?

He should avoid the safety play and go after the overtrick! The duplicate expert will note that if he tries the safety play and it proves to be unnecessary he will wind up with a bad score. He will lose to everyone who has bid four spades. They will make their contracts. He will lose to everyone who has bid three no-trump and gone after the overtrick.

Of course, if it is necessary he gains by making it, but the odds favor a 3-2 suit break as against 4-1 and this time he should go with the odds.

Today's Business Mirror

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — There will be 5.4 million students going to colleges and universities in the United States this fall and about that many American parents wondering how they'll ever meet all the costs.

Millions more already are facing up to the same problem. In the years ahead their youngsters will wind up their high school years. And college costs seem to grow even faster than children do.

The solution? Savings, loans, scholarships, or maybe junior helping out by getting a part-time job?

The nation will be spending $39 billion this year for educating 54 million persons, from kindergarten through graduate schools, the U.S. Office of Education estimates. The college population has more than doubled in the last 10 years with degrees becoming ever more of a factor in landing top jobs.

Some parents start saving for the college years even before the child enters elementary school. This is one incentive for buying U.S. savings bonds, or for regularly putting away money in banks — something like a Christmas Club, only for many years instead of one. Some parents take second, or moonlighting, jobs to raise the needed money.

There are insurance plans now tailored to the future needs of the growing number of college-bound youngsters and the rising cost of higher education.

Other parents dream of junior's winning a scholarship. There are many types of these.

Putting his children through college would cost the parent even more than it does today, if the schools weren't aided by endowment drives. Colleges also ease their rising costs by contributions from corporations, foundations, alumni, individuals, and from taxpayers through the grants from government agencies. The federal government is now enlarging an aid plan that may help.

Sometimes the student himself gets a loan to help finance his journey through college. One plan is the National Defense Student Loan Program which has grown from $13.5 million in loans in 1955 to $145 million today. The individual colleges put up 10 per cent of the loan and handle the applications. The interest and principal payments start after the student gets his degree and may cover 10 years.

More than 800 schools and colleges are now members of the Tuition Plan, Inc., started in 1938. Member colleges offer the plan to parents as an optional payment method. The Tuition Plan pays education fees as they fall due and collects from the parents on a monthly basis.

Of course, junior may do what his father may have done before him — get a job to help out. But students increasingly complain that courses are getting harder and more technical and taking more time and energy every year. That is one reason the pay-as-you-go or the learn-now-pay-later plans are playing a bigger role in the rush for higher education — and better jobs.

Arsenal to Hire

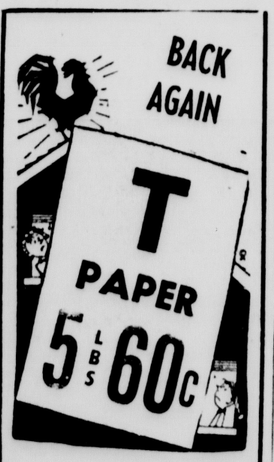

Watervliet Arsenal plans to hire additional production workers on a temporary basis in order to meet work requirements imposed as a result of the current build-up of US military strength in Southeast Asia.

Col. Fred Kornet Jr., commanding officer, says the arsenal will require the services of approximately 135 machinists and machine tool operators for a period not expected to continue beyond the present fiscal year which ends on June 30, 1966.

The arsenal plans to recruit the required employes from its current Civil Service register of eligible applicants, and from qualified employes at government installations such as Watertown Arsenal, Watertown, Mass., which are scheduled to be closed.

Notes Ins, Outs Of Pacific Life Compared to NYC

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Much ado about Ins and Outs.

Recently an article in the New York Times magazine created a stir by naming the 100 In-people, from George Abbott to Tennessee Williams and including a parcel of Kennedys, who now mean most to New York society. Also mentioned were a few Out-people, including Mayor Wagner, Dorothy Kilgallen and Jackie Gleason.

Nowhere is Inmanship practiced more devoutly than in Hollywood. I am not going to name who is In and who is Out because, heavens, I must go on working here.

But I ca report on the habits, customs and institutions that are In and Out in Hollywood today.

Hotels: The Beverly Hills is forever In, and the Beverly Wilshire is suddenly In after an overhaul. The Beverly Hilton has never been In, except for banquets.

Night clubs: The Daisy is the new In discotheque. Whisky-a-Go-Go is now Out. The Cocoanut Grove is In for important openings.

Restaurants: The Bistro is the most In of the new spots. Chasen's of the old. La Scala, Larue and a few small Italian places are In. I refrain from mentioning which cafes are Out; see what happened to Romanoff's when it was no longer In.

Movies: Previews at the Westwood Village are In. Big premieres are Out, except for In charities like Cedars of Lebanon Hospital.

Sports: Tennis is definitely In, golf is Out. Croquet is In — if you are invited to play at Sam Goldwyn's.

Living areas: Beverly Hills as In as you can get. Bel-Air follows. Malibu is In once more. The San Fernando Valley is far Out.

Spectator sports: Watching the Dodgers is so In that Cary Grant does it. Doris Day has made the Lakers basketball team In. The Angels, alas, are Out.

Awards affairs: The Writers Guild dinner is the most In of the year. Attending the Academy Awards is Out; watching it on television at a party is In.

Parties. Discotheque dancing in backyard tents is In. Barbecues are far, far Out.

GOP to Organize Campaign Team, 1st Ward Tonight

An organizational meeting for First Ward Republicans will be held at 8 p. m. today in the Ulster County Court House, it has been announced by Republican City Chairman John Ray Mayone.

One of the purposes of the meeting is to organize a campaign team whose function will be to handle completely the city and county campaigns prior to the November elections, Mayone said.

Similar campaign teams are planned for each ward in the city.

Mayone added, "We all know and appreciate that there is no substitute in politics for the basic campaign work at the neighborhood and block level. It is the feeling of the Republican City Committee that our campaign this year, and indeed in all years, should be handled this way.

"It is also part of the general plan to incorporate these campaign teams into permanent ward teams. The benefits both to the party and the individuals involved are obvious," the city chairman said.

Mayone said he would be present at the meeting tonight to hear any suggestions party members may have concerning the operations of the Republican City Committee.

Jet Pilot Enthused About Glider Success

NEPTUNE, N. J. (AP) —An airlines jet pilot today celebrated his success in making a flight — by glider — from Elmira, N.Y., to this New Jersey community.

Robert Smith, of Bayshore, surpassed Monday what he said was his goal of gliding 200 miles in a straight direction.

His job is jet pilot for Trans World Airlines.

The glider he flew has a wing span of 40 feet. It was towed to an altitude of 2,000 feet near Elmira, N. Y., before being released. He said he reached heights up to 7,000 feet during the flight.

Bliss Finds Support for Stand On GOP Nod to Splinter Groups

By JACK BELL . . . ...

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania provided significant support today for Chairman Ray C. Bliss' invitation to splinter groups to come in under the Republican National Committee tent in the 1966 elections.

Bliss told a news conference Monday — after the Republican Policy Coordinating Committee had failed to produce promised statements on civil rights and balance of payments issue — that he was "fed up with the question of side groups."

Although he once described the conservative Free Society Association formed under the sponsorship of Barry Goldwater, the 1964 GOP presidential nominee, as "harmful" to the party organization, Bliss said he was going to live with this and other groups.

Will Cooperate

"Once they are formed, I am going to try to find a way to work with them," Bliss said. "I will work with any group that will help elect Republicans."

Scranton, who recently said there was no room in the party for extremists, said in an interview he supports Bliss' position.

"With the exception of a couple of organizations which are not really Republican at all, I believe most of these groups can be melded into the party," he said. "I am in favor of electing Republicans and if they are willing to work on that basis, I think room can be found for them."

Romney Firm

But Gov. George Romney of Michigan, along with Scranton a potential candidate for the 1968 GOP presidential nomination, said he is not budging from his position that organizations of the type of Goldwater's Free Society Association tend to weaken the regular party organization.

With obvious reference to Goldwater, Romney told a news conference Monday: "I believe that with the party facing the problem of survival, all of its leaders should concentrate their efforts within the party organization."

Goldwater told a reporter that was just what he was trying to do. He said the Free Society Association would impinge on neither the policy-making nor fund-raising functions of the National Committee.

Will Help Out

"I am asking Chairman Bliss what he wants me to do in the 1966 campaign," Goldwater said. "I am willing to help out in any capacity he suggests."

After an evening meeting with Bliss in Goldwater's Washington apartment, the former senator said the Free Society Association was discussed, but that no particular point was made of it.

"Ray Bliss and I have never been apart," Goldwater said. "We are working together, we always have been and we will continue to do so."

In a statement, Bliss said much the same thing, but made no mention of the Free Society group.

"Unification of the party and methods by which this might be achieved were uppermost in our frank and friendly discussion," the chairman said. "We agreed that the primary objective of the party is to elect Republicans to office at all levels of government in the 1966 elections. We also agreed that all resources of the party must be directed toward that end."

Congress Backing

Bliss' conciliatory attitude toward the more than 20 extra curricular organizations which have been formed to foster divergent viewpoints got support from Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen and House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford.

Dirksen said the GOP provides "a pretty big umbrella" under which divergent views could be sheltered. He said he hopes, however, that the National Committee and these organizations "can find common grounds on basic things" on which to agree.

Ford said that Bliss now is filling some of the "void" which he said caused the outside groups to be formed. He added he believes that in time these organizations will work their way into the parent party organization.

But Gov. Robert E. Smylie of Idaho, chairman of the Republican Governors Association, was not so tractable. He said he sticks by his news conference statement that the Republicans ought to "have it out with them on the floor of the highest councils of the party."

Smylie presided at the opening of national headquarters for the Governor's Association, which Goldwater said represented a "splinter group" action.

Announce New Rules to Prevent Sea Collisions

The new "International Regulations for Preventing Collisions at Sea" become effective Wednesday and must be followed by all public and private vessels of the United States, including motorboats while navigating on the high seas.

These revised rules were drawn up at the Fourth International Conference for Safety of Life at Sea (SOLAS), in London in 1960.

These rules have been more drastically changed with respect to vessels engaged in fishing than any other primary class of vessel. Another significant change made concerns the conduct of vessels in restricted visibility. Some of the other changes apply to towboats and vessels being towed, and pleasure boats which operate on the high seas.

A limited number of free copies of these regulations, commonly called the "International Rules of the Road," are available free of charge from the local U. S. Coast Guard Marine Inspection Offices: Officer-in-Charge, U. S. Coast Guard, Marine Inspection Office, Room 313, Federal Building, Albany, N. Y. 12207.

Soviets Reject Plan to Stop Weapons Spread

GENEVA (AP) — The Soviet Union formally rejected today the American proposal for a treaty to stop the spread of nuclear weapons.

Soviet Delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin told the 17-nation disarmament conference no such treaty can ever be concluded unless it bars West Germany from any direct or indirect access to nuclear weapons.

He described West German "revenge - seeking militarism" as the greatest danger to world security and declared that the Western powers are pretending to seek a halt to the spread of nuclear weapons while plotting to give access to such weapons to the "West German militarists."

A HUNDRED BILLION

Even in these free-spending times, there is a certain shock value in the statement that any one undertaking by the government is going to cost 100 billion dollars. Happily, in the pertinent case, "is going to" is not quite accurate. The project in question, a manned expedition to the planet Mars, is still conjectural.

No one who has observed the swift development of the U. S. and Soviet space programs can doubt that, in due time, men will be sent to Mars. But when Dr. Donald F. Hornig, science advisor to the president, told Congress that such an expedition would cost about 100 billions he set the matter in perspective with this comment: "If this estimate is anywhere in the right ball park, I can only conclude that at this moment there are a number of national objectives that seem more urgent."

An element of timing is involved, in short. The "whether" of going to Mars has doubtless been settled already, simply by the pressure of events. The "when" of it is another matter. Priorities must be considered. Just now, as Dr. Hornig has noted, various other enterprises seem more worthwhile than putting men on Mars.

The enormous cost of such an undertaking gives special point to another consideration. This is the recurrent question whether, in place of going it alone in space, we should not take the initiative in proposing joint space operations which many countries would take part.

There is an element of competition with the Soviet Union. To some extent this has been beneficial; that is, it has undoubtedly prodded us into more vigorous action than would otherwise have been the case. But when it appears that a project now being contemplated might cost the astronomical sum of 100 billion dollars, is it not time to think about a multi-national approach to what should in any case be a joint endeavor of all mankind? In our judgment, the answer is yes.

The intensity of U.S. air raids in North Vietnam continues to escalate—and a lot of us continue to hope peace talks won't come too late to stop the escalation.

MAIL-IT-YOURSELF

Self-service post offices are on the way. Tried experimentally in three locations in the last 10 months, they have proved popular with 94 per cent of the users. The Post Office Department plans to open a series of them across the country.

Each station will remain open around the clock. Vending machines will dispense stamps, stamped envelopes, and post cards. Scales and automatic coin changers will be available. Instructions will be posted.

The do-it-yourself post office is good news for every last-minute mailer who has ever dashed to a post office to find it closed for the day. But let's hope it includes in its equipment an automatic stamp licker and a list of city zip codes. Almost everybody knows his own code—and nobody else's.

Constantine of Greece may have some qualms at being praised as a stubborn king. That's just the kind that tends to get overthrown by stubborn subjects.

THE PACE OF CHANGE

It is an interesting measure of the kind of time we live in that a patent has just been granted on a system for the docking and sealing together of two space craft in orbit. This system is not being employed in the Gemini or Apollo projects; it is intended for use in later programs. A full-scale version is being built.

That is the thing that strikes the mind. Here is no dreamy projection into an improbable future, as might have been the case had anyone offered such a thing for patent a few years ago. This is a practical matter—the hardware to join and lock two manned craft together out in space, with provision for movement of men and equipment back and forth between the two craft. The pace of our movement into the space age is quickening more swiftly than most of us realize.

Texans do so well in Washington, a cynic paraphrased a quote from Orwell's "Animal Farm" thus All Americans are equal, but Texans are more equal than others.

'These Days'

ACADEMIA DOES SOMETHING RIGHT

Every year thousands of foreign students come to the United States. More than a thousand enroll themselves in the colleges and universities of New York State, after coming through the favorite port of entry at Kennedy airfield. They usually live on or close to campuses, in towns that have a special flavor, and what they glean about the structure of non-university American life is necessarily limited by their surroundings. Occasionally they learn something about American family life through a student exchange relationship, or by getting invited to a Thanksgiving dinner.

Much of this will be changed, however, if a dynamic educator named Dr. Glenn Olds has anything to do about it. Dr. Olds has been President of Springfield College in Massachusetts, an institution that specializes in physical education, for the past six years. But, though he respects athletes and insists that there is a vital connection between the I.Q. and physical fitness (he brought Frederick Rogers, a controversial figure in education, to explain something called the Rogers Physical Fitness Index, which makes muscle tone a mental bulwark, to his faculty), Dr. Olds is a philosopher by training. New York State has recently lifted him out of Springfield to plan the content of international studies for all the fifty-eight campuses in the state university system.

For a headquarters the State handed Dr. Olds an empty seventy-eight room mansion set in five hundred acres of arboretum on the North Shore of suburban Long Island near Oyster Bay. The site is improbable if one is thinking of inducting foreign students into the realities of American life. But Dr. Olds has his eye on surrounding Nassau County. What he wants to do, when he gets going on his international curriculum planning for the New York State universities, is to funnel all incoming foreign students to his Long Island center for an American orientation period. He plans to turn the students loose, though under proper guidance, on Nassau County to study the evolving institutions of a region that is right in the human hurricane path of a metropolis that is bursting at the seams.

Where Nassau was once a placid stretch of farms, country estates and rich men's horse pastures and polo fields, it is fast becoming a dormitory for New York City office workers. It is also attracting its own industries. A foreign student with a few weeks of intensive study of Nassau County under his belt would know a great deal about the problems of a giant nation struggling with the population explosion, urban sprawl, transportation troubles, water pollution and all the other ills that beset modern man in his new industrial environment.

As an educator and specialist in philosophy and ethics, Dr. Olds sets himself up as an opponent of most of our cherished academic shibboleths. He doesn't like the current emphasis on the I.Q. as the sole test of intelligence. The people who administer intelligence tests, he says, are overdeveloped in their capacity to handle abstractions. They devise tests that measure the ability to manipulate verbal and mathmatical symbols, but fail to test people in such important areas as motor-mindedness and practical decision-making. The mathematical and verbal mind, says Dr. Olds, is forever analyzing. But in real life, the ability to know when to stop analyzing and go over into action is the most important quality to be desired.

Just before leaving Springfield Dr. Olds had an opportunity to flout one of the more stupid excesses that come from the theory that a teacher must "publish or perish." Professor Woodrow Wilson Sayre, the grandson of President Wilson, had been dropped from the Tufts faculty, allegedly for failure to write academic books on philosophy. But Dr. Sayre, an excellent classroom teacher according to his students, had just written a stirring account of his attempt to climb Mt. Everest without hiring an expensive retinue of guides and carriers. This impressed Dr. Olds as "philosophy under stress." So he went out and hired Dr. Sayre for the Springfield faculty.

When H. L. Mencken was engaged by the o'd Baltimore Sun to do a column, Marse Henry Watterson, the Louisville editor, wrote that the Sun had got itself a "whangdoodle." The New York State educational system has hired a wangdoodle in Dr. Glenn Olds.

Surgical Repair Needed For Esophagus Illness

BY WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—What is the cause of diverticulum of the esophagus? Is there any cure?

A—In one type of esophageal diverticulum a weakness in the wall of the esophagus permits an outpouching which enlarges due to the normal pressures as swallowed food passes the weak spot. This type is usually seen in elderly persons. As the outpouching continues to enlarge food may enter the blind sac. This causes pressure on the esophagus from the outside and makes swallowing difficult. Surgical repair is the only treatment.

The second type is less common. It is caused by adhesions pulling on the wall of the esophagus from without. This type is usually small and rarely produces any symptons.

Q—I am a retired man of 66. Lately I have had a slight pain now and then in the vicinity of my appendix. I always thought that once a person reached 60 the appendix was shriveled up and practically obliterated. What do you think?

A—Appendicitis is not uncommon in persons who are over 60 since there is no appreciable shriveling with age. The pain in the right lower part of the abdomen may be due to a great variety of causes but appendicitis is most unlikely because that is an acute disease in which the pain is severe. Chronic appendicitis is rare and occurs only in persons who had had more than one attack of acute appendictitis. Most persons have their appendix removed in the first attack. Better have your doctor determine what is causing your pain.

Q—I have bowlegs. Are there any exercises that would help me?

A—Exercises will strengthen your muscles but will not change the shape of your bones. In young children braces will sometimes straighten the bones if you are over 14 you will either have to make friends with this condition or have the curved bones broken and realigned.

Q—Since red blood cells carry oxygen and oxygen is necessary for breathing isn't it true that the red blood cells are affected in some way when a person has a disease; such as asthma, that impedes the breathing?

A—In asthma and other diseases in which air hunger develops, an increase in the rate of breathing compensates for the difficulty in getting oxygen to the blood through the lungs. In a very severe asthmatic attack, however, the lungs do not supply enough oxygen to the blood and the carbon dioxide level of the blood increases. The reduced hemoglobin then gives the blood a bluish color in contrast to that of red oxyhemoglobin. In asthma this is rarely severe enough to cause loss of consciousness.

Please send your questions and comments to Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D., in care of this paper. While Dr. Brandsadt cannot answer individual letters he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

"President Eisenhower Has Been a Tower of Strength---"---LBJ

Washington News

WASHINGTON (NEA)—The radical right in this country appears to be substantially stronger than a year ago.

Membership figures among rightist groups are always shadowy, but there is good presumptive evidence that they are on a marked upgrade. New groups are still springing up.

The radical right's money-than ever (tfer a banner 1964), and there is no reason to doubt that most goals will be reached.

The John Birch Society alone is budgeting a whopping $12 million to press the arch-conservative cause in the 1966 elections. Its organizing drive covers 325 of the 435 congressional districts.

Studies have indicated that rightist groups have lately been collecting about $30 million a year. This total could rise considerably this year and next.

THE TIDE of right-wing books and pamphlets, which played a heavy role in Barry Goldwater's 1964 campaign, flows on.

One of the newer works is a 128-page profile of Vice President Hubert Humphrey, entitled "That Man From Minnesota." Written by Richard P. Jennett, a 32-year-old Boston free lance writer who has contributed to various far-right publications, the book charges that Humphrey has "really drawn his ideals from none other than Benito Mussolini and Adolph Hitler."

Says Jennett —

"In Hubert Humphrey we have a man who shows every sign of becoming power-drunk, a one-man ruler if he ever steps up to the presidency. Already, under his prodding, Lyndon Johnson is turning the screws on legislative government and demanding that Congress become a Reichstag-like rubber stamp."

Though the book's cover now shows just a black silhouette of Humphrey's profile, the cover on the first 25,000 copies had a swastika planted on an American flag. It also carried the printed question — "Will Hubert Humphrey Put A Swastika on Our Flag?"

AMONG OTHER NEW BOOKS is one on civil rights called "It's Very Simple," by Alan Stang, New York magazine writer. Published by the Birch Society's Western Islands Press, this paperback already is turning up on desks in Congress.

Its theme is that the entire civil rights movement in the United States was conceived by Communists.

It is too early to say whether any of the new entries will match the huge distribution gained by three or four rightist works in 1964. One source calls them "not best sellers but best givers," since their large circulation is attained by free hand-out after cheap mass purchase by interested groups.

Author Jennett, incidentally, operates something called the Spirit of 76 House. Besides supplying his and other right-wing books, it offers pen-type tear gas guns, Bibles and American flags.

CLEARLY, THE RADICAL RIGHT found hope rather than despair in the 1964 election returns. Arch-conservatives richly enjoyed their moment in the sun with Barry Goldwater. Many learned their first hard lessons in practical politics and are ready for more.

The John Birch Society, Billy James Hargis, Fred Schwarz, Gerald L. K. Smith and the Americans for Constitutional Action (now bending farther right), all took in substantially more money in 1964 than in 1963. Financially, the years ahead look good to them.

Far from crawling away to die after the Goldwater debacle, the American radical right seems today to be brimming with health and high spirits — and set for another hard try in 1966 at electing some of its own to major offices across the nation.

Federal Role in Fixing Of Wages, Prices Is Expanding

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON— The Federal government is moving more and more into the control of wage settlements as well as price-making in America. This intervention has hitherto been confined by law only to wartime, but it is becoming apparent that restrictive policies may have to be applied even in peacetime. This is, to some extent, being done informally at present and without the sanction of law.

Though labor-union leaders may give the impression outwardly that they are concerned about this, they will probably not worry much about it privately. For the labor unions really control the Administration in power as well as a majortiy in both houses of Congress. They have built up their political strength to a point where they can swing Presidential as well as Congressional elections, and they have contributed directly or indirectly many millions of dollars for this purpose.

Thats why labor unions don't have any fear when the Administration intervenes to bring about wage settlements, either when a strike is threatened or when one goes on for 75 days, as did the maritime-union stoppage. They can hold out to the very last day of negotiations, or even call a strike, knowing full well that in the national interest the Administration in Washington must take some steps to end the emergency.

In nearly every dispute which has gone to the final stage and in which government "mediation" or intervention has become necessary, the settlement has turned out better for the labor unions than the proposals they previously had rejected. So it becomes profitable for the unions to force the issue to the critical stage, where the government must intervene. The labor-union influence in government is then sufficient to get a last minute "compromise" which isn't a "compromise" at all but a forced settlement that the managements have to accept.

There used to be talk of guidelines" to regulate the amount of the wage or price increases, and it was asserted that some kind of economic formula of equitable proportiors was being applied. But the labor unions scorn these "guidelines" or disregard them. When the management side tries to raise prices, however, so as to absorb the cost of the increased wages, the Federal government steps in to threaten anti-trust suits. As long as the employers collaborate to agree on fixing wage levels, they seem to be immune from prosecution. But once they use the same yardstick to fix higher prices, they find themselves being threatened or investigated or coerced by the anti-trust prosecutors.

If the Federal government does have to intervene to settle labor disputes, it would be much fairer if judges of high rank were designated either to arbitrate the differences or to set forth on their own initiative the terms that each side should accept. But to allow persons from the political branches of government to act as mediators merely accentuates the political influence, and it enables the labor unions to reap the benefits of their political alliances and heavy campaign contributions.

The present Congress has been lax in looking at the activities of labor unions which have been furnishing funds to outside organizations. If compulsory unionization is to become the law in all states, then workers will have to pay dues whether or not they like what is done with their money.

Sen. Paul Fannin of Arizona wants to include in the proposed bill to invalidate state "right to work" laws an amendment which would make sure that the workers' dues could not be used for political purposes. Mr. Fannin points out that the records of the Auto Workers union, for instance, during the last four years show expenditures of "millions of dollars for political activities" and "financial support for many organizations which by no stretch of the imagination have anything to do with wages, hours and working conditions." Contributions were made to such groups as the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Americans for Democratic Action, United World Federalists, National Council of Churches and other groups. The Arizona Senator said that, while some of these may be worthy causes, individual union members should not be compelled to supply funds for the support of church groups or racial groups or any other movement which they do not wish to support.

The biggest single unexposed irregularity in America today is the use of union funds to help win elections for certain candidates. There are laws forbidding such contributions on the part of unions or corporations, but somehow, under a political Administration, there is a reluctance to bite the hand that feeds it.

Do You Remember by Sophie Miller

Mrs. Peter Feltman of Kerhonkson wrote me about her husband's cousin, William Feltman, 89 years old this coming November, who started to shave hoops when he was 16 years old. I had asked in a July 16 column if anyone remembers this process.

Mrs. Feltman said William told her that chestnut, oak and maple trees were used because they grew nearby. Around September they started to cut the trees, and pile them up, and then leave them until the snows came, when they could draw them out easily from the woods with a hourse and sleigh. There was a shop nearby where they had a large fireplace and they could burn the stuff they shaved off. They would tie them, 100 to a bundle, with a tar string, and take them to Kerhonkson to A. J. Anderson or James Lansburg who paid them $2.50 for 1,000. The last time William Feltman made shaved hoops was in 1914 and then sold them to D. N. Mathews.

William Feltman reads this column and so asked Mrs. Peter Feltman to write me about his personal experience with hoop making around here. He lives right across the fields from Mrs. Feltman and takes a walk to her house every day, and feels that is what keeps him going.

When one looks back at happy oldtimers who passed 80, one often finds they walk a great deal. It is now so convenient to jump in the car and go for every little errand, that people are forgetting how to walk. Playing golf does not seem to be the answer, for one thing, there is competition, walking on too soft earth, and a must to be here and there and follow the ball. Too many young people who play golf and ride in cars all the time do not live past fifty. There must be an answer somewhere.

Lately with the Robert Fulton stamp first day issue one design to decorate the envelopes was a mariner's compass. I notice that in illustrations often north is marked with a fleur-de-lys, which is French for flower of the lily. This has been the practice in Europe for six centuries, according to the Book of Knowledge. The reason that the fleur-de-lys came to be used for that purpose is that it was the heraldic badge of Charles of Anjou, the King of Naples at the time that Flavio Gioja, the Neapolitan mariner, improved the compass and made it practically indispensable to navigators. As a compliment to King Charles, Gioja adopted the fleur-de-lys as the ornamental sign that should mark the north point in his improved compass, and the custom has continued.

A very interesting little booklet was given to me by Tom Walsh, collector of Hudson River, Kingston and Catskill Mountain items with a show room at 17 Railroad avenue. It is the "Celebration of the 50th Anniversary of the Incorporation of Kingston March 29, 1872 — April 2, 1922" which was held at the high school auditorium.

One item from this booklet reads: "A city whose people dwell together in peace and harmony . . . that care for the advancement and development of its future citizens by amply providing for their education, that protects the lives and the properties of the people by suitable safeguards, and that insures their happiness and contentment through the progressive spirit that dominates our leaders, such a city is ours that is tonight the inviting subject of our praise." Thus they wrote about the golden jubilee of our Colonial City. Will quote more from this interesting little historic item of 1922.

Note Only Minor Injuries in Two Ellenville Mishaps

Dual wheels on a tractor-trailer and a dropped pipe were the cause of two accidents investigated by Ellenville state police yesterday. In both accidents injuries were reported as minor.

At 9:30 p. m. Monday while Fred Osterhoudt, 54, of Kerhonkson was operating his car east on Queens Highway about 3/10 of a mile west of Route 209 he dropped his pipe to the floor of his car. In reaching for the pipe Osterhoudt lost control of his car which ran off the southerly side of a bridge and overturned on its top in the creek. The pipe was saved but Osterhoudt sustained a cut of the lower lip and contusions of the head. There was no arrest. Trooper Robert Brooks, who investigated the accident, said Osterhoudt said he would seek treatment for his injuries from his physician.

The second accident which Trooper Brooks also investigated was at 4:30 p. m. on Route 209 in the Town of Rochester and involved the dual wheels of a tractor truck which was traveling south on Route 209. In that accident Wallace Baker, 39, of Kerhonkson, suffered a bruised leg.

Trooper Brooks reported a tractor - trailer operated by William McGill, 51, of Brandenton, Florida, was proceeding south on Route 209 about 300 feet south of Accord when the left dual wheels of the truck came off. The wheels ran to the west side of the highway to a parking lot of the Valley Gardens nursery ther they struck Baker as he was alighting from a car owned by Henry Freer of Kerhonkson.

The wheels then continued on, striking shrubs on the nursery grounds and also damaging one of the nursery buildings. The wheels then struck the front of the Freer car. The vehicle operated by McGill ran off the road and suffered no other damage.

Senate Ratifies Plan On Settling Claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has ratified an agreement with Canada that would settle property damage claims by U. S. citizens growing out of the operation of Gut Dam on the St. Lawrence River.

By a vote of 74-0 Monday, the Senate approved the creation of an International arbitration tribunal to settle the claims, which total $8.5 million.

The agreement provides that the tribunal would decide whether:

— Gut Dam actually caused the damage by raising the level of Lake Ontario, thus damaging American-owned property on its shores.

— Legal liability does, in fact, exist and what amounts are to be paid.

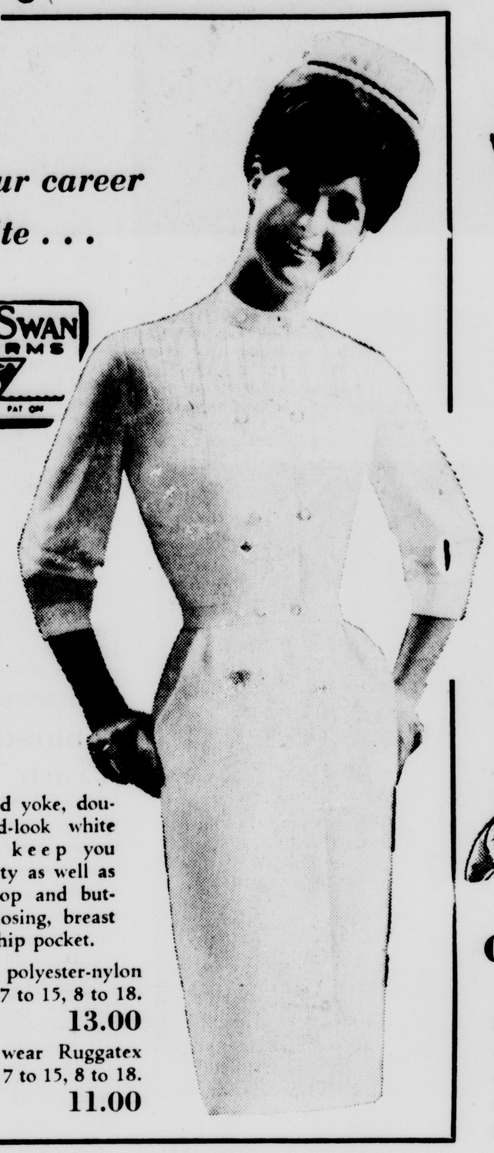

The dam was built in 1903 and removed in 1953 after it been damaged by weather.

Approve $4.7 Billion Higher Education Bill in Committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Labor Comittee unanimously approved today a $4.7-billion higher-education bill to authorize funds to aid needy students and help colleges meet the enrollent crush.

The committee added to the bill new provisions designed to improve education in poverty-stricken districts of cities and rural areas.

Ready for Senate

Sponsors said the measure will be reported to the Senate Wednesday and probably taken up for debate Thursday.

As it cleared the Senate committee, it goes far beyond President Johnson's recommendations. But he has concurred in most of the changes.

The vote to send the bill to the Senate for passage was 16-0, with the committee's five Republican members joining 11 Democrats in supporting it.

The House passed the legislation last week, also expanded greatly over the administration's proposals.

The House version would authorize about $650 million the first year compared with $667-million for the Senate measure. But the Senate bill contains authorizations for an additional four years in most titles, bringing the total to $4.7 billion.

Was Higher

As it cleared the education subcommittee last Friday, the measure totaled $5.5 billion.

The bill would carry out a Johnson recommendation by inaugurating a program of scholarships for needy college students, supplementing present loan and work-study assistance.

One of the provisions added to the bill in committee would set up a national teacher corps with a first-year authorization of $36.1 million.

This would make available about 6,000 teachers to go into poverty-stricken areas and seek to improve educational opportunities for disadvantaged children.

Gift Is Mailed To Destination After 13 Years

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—A gift of jewelry mailed 13 years ago finally has been delivered after side trips to Oklahoma and Florida.

Mrs. Louis Fien of Rochester said today the package was posted in Teheran, Iran, in 1952 by a World War II friend, Esther Greene.

The gift was confiscated by Iranian officials, recovered by U.S. officials and stored with the personal effects of Miss Greene, who by then was working for the U.S. State Department in India.

When Miss Greene was transferred to Washington, D.C., she shipped her personal effects to her parents in Oklahoma. The jewelry, unknown to her, also was included.

In 1956, Miss Greene married Paul Goodwin of Miami, Fla., and the personal effects again were carted along. The unopened package of jewelry landed in the Goodwin's Miami attic.

The Goodwins are moving to New Zealand. A clean-out of the attic revealed the much-traveled package, and it was dispatched to Mrs. Fien.

Purchase price of the jewelry in Teheran in 1952 was $10.

Johnson Still

their efforts to every man and woman in this country of ours, and to the health and vitality of our economy and the security of America all around the world," Johnson said Monday night.

Johnson announced the postponement over television and radio. Union President I.W. Abel and chief industry negotiator R. Conrad Cooper stood by, unsmiling. Then the two sides returned to the conference table for a little over an hour before recessing until today.

After the postponement was announced, steel makers promptly began firing up furnaces they had begun to shut down in anticipation of the scheduled strike.

Have Tough Job

Federal mediators, headed by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz and Secretary of Commerce John T. Connor, now have the tough job of trying to reconcile what Johnson had described Monday as the "very hard positions" of both sides.

The union is demanding a 17.9-cent hourly increase in wages and fringe benefits in each year of a three-year contract. The industry's last offer was 13.5 cents per hour.

Each penny means $10 million a year in labor costs to the industry.

Johnson has indicated in the past that he expects a settlement within White House wage-price guidelines that would limit the raise to 3.2 per cent with no price increase. He did nothing Monday to change that impression.

The guidelines are based on federal estimates that production per man hour has been rising at the rate of 3.2 per cent per year and that industry therefore can raise wages that much without boosting prices.

A 3.2-per cent wage increase would amount to about 14 cents per hour added to present wages and fringe benefits averaging $4.40 per hour for the approximately 450,000 steelworkers involved.

"He (Johnson) realizes concessions will be necessary from both sides," Moyers said.

Will Get Tough With Students Opposing Draft

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, defending South Viet Nam's draft law, has warned that he will get tough with students who oppose the decree.

"The present government has an open ear for constructive criticism, but shall not sacrifice its concern for the general welfare by kow-towing to senseless opposition," Ky said Monday in a statement reported by Viet Nam Press, the official government news agency.

Speaking in the central highlands town of Ba Me Thout, Ky defended the law making men under 37 who have not previously served in the military eligible for the draft.

Student groups in Hue, Da Nang and Saigon have charged that the law discriminates against the intellectual community. They have called for a return to civilian rule.

Longshoremen Unloading 100,000 Tons of Cargo

NEW YORK (AP) — Thousands of longshoremen in Atlantic and Gulf ports, idled by the 75-day strike of three deck officers unions, streamed back to work today to start unloading 100,000 tons of cargo which piled up during the walkout.

President Johnson announced a strike settlement Sunday. Members of the two striking unions, the International Organization of Masters, Mates and Pilots, and the American Radio Association, both AFL-CIO, were expected to ratify the four-year agreements.

Radio officers will vote later today and the masters, mates and pilots Wednesday. Some of the nearly 100 freighters tied up by the strike could be moving by Wednesday night if union members approve the contract terms.

Eight struck shipping lines, represented in the negotiations by the American Merchant Marine Institute, want to clear out the cargo and begin signing on crews.

Assassination Now Is Federal Crime

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill that would make killing, kidnaping or attacking a president a federal crime has been signed into law by President Johnson.

The bill carries out a recommendation of the President's Commission on the Assassination of President John F. Kennedy. It applies also to the vice president, president-elect, or anyone acting as president.

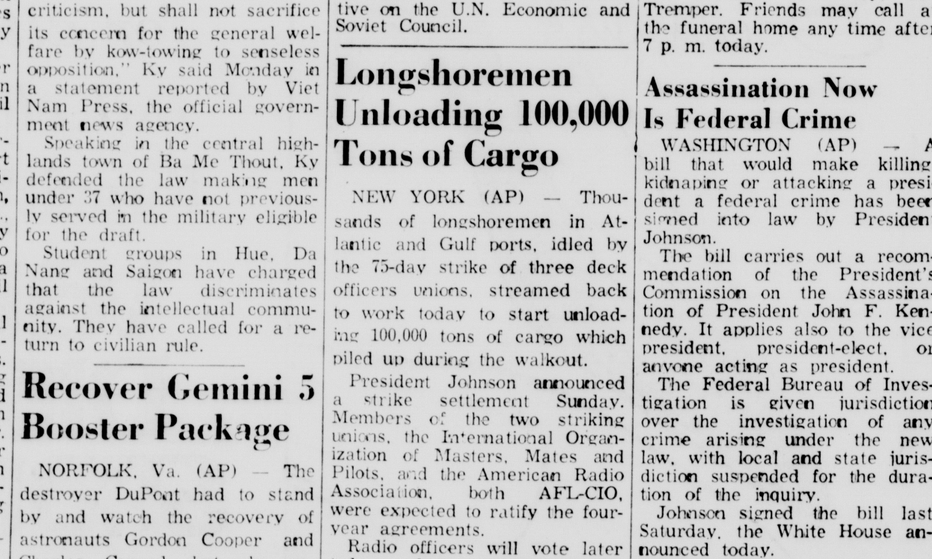

The Federal Bureau of Investigation is given jurisdiction over the investigation of any crime arising under the new law, with local and state jurisdiction suspended for the duration of the inquiry.

Johnson signed the bill last Saturday, the White House announced today.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

By JIM GILPATRIC

Have you ever noticed famous people have a certain knack with words? How they seem to use the right word at the right time in the right place to say what they mean and mean what they say?

Lincoln's immortal Gettysburg address is an excellent example. Remember the — "We have nothing to fear but fear itself" — by F. D. R.? It would have sounded meaningless had he said, "We have nothing to be afraid of." Winston Churchill could have said, "We owe an awful lot to the R. A. F." Instead, he said, "Never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few."

Hardly any of us would know what was meant if we heard, "Do not enumerate your poultry prior to successful termination of the process of incubation." But we all know what is meant by, "Don't count your chickens until they're hatched" — and it means the same thing. The point is of course worth remembering when we hear the flow of words concerning our present day problems.

Domingo Junta To Make Way for OAS Government

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — The chief of the Dominican junta has announced that the civilian-military body is resigning to make way for a provisional regime proposed by the Organization of American States.

Brig. Gen. Antonio Imbert Barreras, junta president, made the announcement Monday night in a surprise radio-television broadcast.

Imbert said the five-man junta and the Cabinet would resign as soon as the provisional government takes office, probably by midweek.

The announcement climaxed weeks of thorny negotiations by the OAS political committee headed by U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker.

The only member of the government not to sign the resignation document was Commodore Francisco J. Rivera, 36, armed forces secretary, regarded as boss of the Dominican military.

The reason for Rivera Caminero's failure to sign could not be determined immediately, but the junta and the military were reported at odds over the OAS peace formula.

It was learned during the week that Rivera Caminero and the military chiefs of staff were more favorably disposed toward signing the modified version of the OAS formula than the junta. The armed forces leaders, it was reported, had conferred during the past week with the provisional president designate, Hector Garcia Godoy, on modifications suggested by the rebel regime.

Imbert, it was also known, was under pressures from various political quarters not to accept the revised peace plan.

Factors in the resignation, high sources said, were the army's refusal to go along with this position and President Johnson's announcement that the U.S. government supported the OAS peace formula.

Today in Washington

By DON CARSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — A day of contrasts.

Disagreeing steel negotiators agreed to delay a shutdown for eight days as they seek settlement of their contract dispute.

A Democratic president chatted with a Republican predecessor and his last GOP challenger.

Republican leaders agreed and disagreed over the value of some so-called splinter organizations.

Steel crisis: The steel industry is operating in its second period of a strike truce.

President Johnson announced Monday night that negotiators had agreed to an eight-day delay in shutdown which was to have begun at one minute past midnight tonight. The new deadline is 12:01 Sept. 9.

Truce Earlier

Earlier this year a four-month truce was agreed upon, but no new contract was forthcoming and the second strike was scheduled.

The President revealed the decision about seven hours after steel negotiators had arrived from Pittsburgh to continue their talks in Washington.

Earlier the President had talked to management and union representatives for 45 minutes. Press secretary Bill D. Moyers said Johnson told them he hoped they would not "plant their feet in concrete" and "the hours of the clock are ticking (but) the American people are confident" an agreement will be reached soon.

Focus on Wages

Wages are at the center of the deadlock. The administration has urged a guideline of 3.2 per cent annually to match the expected growth in the rate of productivity.

Industry spokesmen say they have offered 3 per cent, but the union replies that it figures out to 2.3 per cent. In turn, the union says it has asked about 4 per cent.

President—Republicans: President Johnson took advantage of a meeting of the Republican Policy Coordinating Committee to talk with former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and Barry Goldwater, the GOP's 1964 presidential nominee.

Welcomes Advice

The President and former president talked for about 45 minutes at the White House, and afterward press secretary Moyers said:

"The President always welcomes the chance to get the general's advice on many subjects."

The Johnson-Goldwater exchange was via telephone. Moyers said, "They had a nice friendly social chat."

He said Johnson had offered to provide Goldwater with Central Intelligence Agency briefings. This is something Goldwater spurned when he was a presidential candidate. He said he wanted more details before deciding about the current offer.

CAPITAL QUOTES

Thomas E. Dewey, former governor of New York and twice the GOP presidential nominee: "Anyone who tries to form an organization in his own image will fail."

Idaho Gov. Robert E. Smylie, chairman of the new Republican Governors Association: "I think we ought to have it (the splinter issue) out with them on the floor in the highest council of the party."

Republican National Chairman Ray C. Bliss: "I am fed up on this question of side groups. I will work with any group that will help elect Republicans."

James Marlow, AP news analyst: "When Republicans get together, they don't look it."

CAPITAL FOOTNOTES

A congressional committee says the federal government's civilian pay roll increased by 34,461 in July for a total of 2.5 million. It was the biggest monthly jump since June 1962. . . The Senate has okayed a compromise bill which would create a Cabinet- level Department of Housing and Urban Affairs. The next step is up to the House and approval is expected. . .Budget Director Charles L. Schultze says government spending will top $100 billion next year and may eclipse that figure in the current fiscal year. . . William McChesney Martin, head of the Federal Reserve System, says the economic impact of the war in Viet Nam "hasn't gotten out of control yet."

Social Security Change

Those Over 72, Short of Credits May Be Eligible

Many Ulster and Greene County men and women over 72, who did not have enough social security credit to receive monthly benefits before, may now be eligible to receive payments under the 1965 changes in the Social Security Law, George J. Habernig, district manager of the Kingston Social Security Office stated today.

Previously a worker needed at least six quarters of coverage, about a year and a half of work, to get monthly benefits, Habernig stated. Under the new provision, benefits may be paid at age 72 or later to a worker (and his wife) in some cases if the worker has three, four, or five quarters of coverage, depending on his age.

For example, a man 76 or older in 1965, or a woman 73 or over in 1965, needs just three quarters of coverage, roughly nine months of work. A man 75 or a woman 72 in 1965 needs four quarters of coverage, about one year of work, and a man 74 or a woman 71 in 1965 needs five. Anyone younger needs six or more quarters of coverage.

Widows of deceased workers may also get payment under the new provision. However, the number of work credits needed may depend both on the widow's age and the year the deceased worker died or reached age 65.

Anyone who thinks he might qualify under this change in the law is urged to get in touch with the social security office, located at 57 Albany Avenue, Kingston.

Habernig added that workers and widows of deceased workers who are eligible under this new section of the law will receive $35 a month, while wives of workers will get $17.50 a month.

Seek Substitute School Teachers

Certified teachers living in the Saugerties area are invited to submit applications for substitute work, according to Dr. Dexter O. Arnold, superintendent of Saugerties Central Schools.

He indicated that the best source of substitutes has been married women who have time to assist when a regular teacher is absent. In some cases they have children who are in school, and in others they are able to get sitters. Most have had previous teaching experience. Generally they are called upon for short periods but occasionally there are long substitutions.

Applications are available at the Administration Building, Hill Street or will be mailed upon request. After the application has been completed, the applicant is interviewed by a member of the staff and the name is added to the list of approved substitutes. When a substitute is needed, principals contact persons whose names appear on the list. Substitutes will find lesson plans, which teachers have prepared in advance, available.

Hospital Care Is Object of IBM Computer Project

Streamlining patient care and reducing hospital paperwork — both with the use of a computer — is the object of a joint project announced today by the University of Texas-Medical Branch and International Business Machines Corporation.

As part of the project, doctors and nurses at the John Sealy Hospital in Galveston will use an IBM data processing system to order drugs, schedule operating room time and plan patients' diets.

D. J. Bobbitt, general didector of Texas University's hospitals, explained that a hospital information system is designed to achieve greater efficiency and provide better patient care—in both large and small hospitals.

With such a system, the computer — for the first time — will be able to link a hospital's nursing stations, clinical laboratories, pharmacy blood bank, admitting office, medical records unit, business office and other departments.

With this network, the computer will be able to help admit patients; find beds for them; order drugs; schedule X-rays; schedule and report results of lab tests and plan special diets. It will also schedule the use of the operating room and other test and therapeutic facilities, and furnish doctors with up-to-the-minute records showing the treatment given and the progress made by their patients.

and Stafford will try to catch and hook up with on their flight.

Schirra and Stafford planned today to climb into their spacecraft and "get acquainted" with the Agena. The idea is to exercise a radar system to practice final closing maneuvers.

The Agena is moved back and forth on an eight-foot set of rails and the astronauts use their radar to interrogate a radar beacon in the satellite.

The purpose is to see how well the two space vehicles work together. In orbit, the Gemini radar, in effect, will ask: "Where are you?" The Agena beacon will reply: "Here I am."

Gradually the two are brought together and the astronauts make the final steering maneuvers to accomplish the linkup.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved cautiously this afternoon, showing a mixed pattern and no enthusiasm over the eight-day delay in the steel strike deadline.

The top steel shares were narrowly mixed like the rest of the market.

Trading was moderate but the volume total was running ahead of Monday, chiefly because of the transfer of some big blocks.

Among these was 50,000 shares of Union Carbide, up ⅞ at 63. The stock moved ahead more than a point in later dealings.

Some Wall Street comment was to the effect that the steel industry will have a hard time to absorb a new package of improved wages, pension and insurance benefits without a reduction in profit margins.

The delay in the strike deadline therefore, was regarded as only a temporary reprieve, pending the final revelation of what the next wage package is going to cost the steel industry.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was unchanged at 333.1 with industrials up .2, rails off .1 and utilities off .2.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up .33 at 895.96 — exactly making up Monday's slight decline.

The gain by Union Carbide and a similar rise by Du Pont helped maintain the market indicators on a fairly even keel.

MEETS OLDTIMERS—A group of oldtime railroad men gather around Lloyd A. Newcombe's Whistle Stop Special during a recent campaign swing through Kingston. Newcombe is a GOP primary candidate for the nomination of State Senator in the 43rd District, Ulster, Greene, Sullivan Counties. The train, fascimile of an old fashioned observation car, was designed by a group of Newcombe volunteers to symbolize the grassroots campaign being waged by Newcombe for the Republican State Senatorial nomination. The "Whistle Stop Special," rigged with a locomotive bell from a New York Central train, has become a familiar sight on the highways during the past two weeks. Left to right are Candidate Newcombe, Benjamin Osterhoudt, street car conductor in Kingston from 1919 to the time the system was discontinued; Charles Elmendorf, for 39 years with the New York Central Railroad; Edward Conners, a New York Central train caller for 22 years.

The Purple Heart medal was originally founded by George Washington in 1782 for bravery. It consisted of a purple heart-shaped piece of cloth edged with silver braid. Only three were actually awarded. The 200th anniversary of Washington's birth was chosen for the revival of this award and on Feb. 22, 1932, a new purple heart was instituted. It is a purple, heart-shaped badge with bronze edges.

Purchase of a Defense Stock Is Discussed

ROGER E. SPEAR

Q) "I have $4,800 a year pension and own 98 American Telephone, 25 General Motors, 60 U. S. Steel, 50 Madison Fund and $6,000 in savings. I have been advised to buy Bendix Corp Please give me your opinion on this and my present holdings." C. P.

A) I should first like to commend you on your holdings. These seem entirely satisfactory except for your U. S. Steel. I am not impressed by the outlook for the steels. They have been doing well from an earnings standpoint largely because of inventory buildups in anticipation of labor trouble. In any event, they will be under pressure to make broad concessions, perhaps without compensatory price rises. I would switch this stock into Consolidated Edison.

Bendix is an excellent company in a business which has little growth potential. The bulk of its business is with the Government — military orders, aviation, space-age products. The stock has moved up lately on developments in Viet Nam and could prove volatile. However, you might well buy a moderate amount for the well-secured 4½ per cent yield.

Q) "It is my intention to invest each quarter through the Monthly Investment Plan. This is for higher education of my three children. My broker suggests Allied Chemical. I prefer Eastman Kodak. Will you offer any comment? J. P.

A) With pleasure. In this instance I agree strongly with you. Both stocks you mention are good issues, but Allied Chemical has shown relatively little growth over the past decade, and where it really shows up — in price — Allied has stood practically still since 1955.

Eastman, on the other hand, has shown excellent growth for many years and has practically quintupled in price over the past ten years. For your purpose, you need as much growth as you can get and I believe — and the market certainly confirms this—that you will do far better in the coming years with Eastman than with Allied.

Mr. Spear cannot answer all mail personally but will answer all questions possible in his column.

75 Protest

one family per acre would provide adequate sewage.

However, Edinger indicated that this was a "rule of thumbs" and need not of necessity apply to facilities as installed in the case of an apartment building.

Members of the Tanglewood-West Hurley Civic Association are of the opinion that the proposed apartment complex with some eight families per acre will adversely affect the sanitary problem of the area. In addition they feel that the roads in the area are insufficient for additional travel and that to construct additional roads to accommodate apartment travel on Tanglewood Road would entail a heavy tax burden.

Unity Is Purpose

The Association was formed "to unify area residents" so they can of necessity proceed in an orderly fashion to act on problems of traffic safety, schools, zoning, insect control, water conservation, sanitation safeguards and taxation. Area residents are invited to join and may contact W. Jack Kahn, chairman pro tem, or Mrs. Walter Rose, secretary.

The Association in the petition stresses six points for their objection to the proposed apartment complex as follows.

1. Area land qualities for sewage are poor and would be aggrevated by the alleged construction.

2. An apartment building would upset the sensative health and sanitary conditions and delicate water supply.

3. Present road conditions on Tanglewood Road cannot handle traffic of such expanded population and expenditures by the town board for road improvement would certainly be increased.

4. In advance of any future zoning ordinance, the petitioners apply for consideration to preserve the present desirable character of Tanglewood Road as an area of private single family dwellings.

5. A sudden increase of school age population would create a problem for the area school system and necessitate a significant increase in taxation.

6. In the interest of the orderly development of West Hurley, the petitioners request that the town board, Ulster County Health Department and involved parties restrict and prohibit the advancement of the construction referred to above.

It was also moved that a special meeting be called for residents of the West Hurley area and the Zoning Board of Appeals to discuss the proposed construction of a service station on Route 375 near the Tanglewood Road intersection.

Bloodhound Loses Chance in Court, Owner Will Talk

LOCKPORT, N.Y. (AP) — A 3-year - old bloodhound named Cleo lost her chance to "testify" in police court because the Niagara County district attorney's office has decided to use her owner's testimony about her qualifications.

Police said Cleo flushed Robert F. Westphal, 35, of North Tonawanda, out of the bushes Saturday while they were investigating an attempted burglary at a lumber co.

The bloodhound was scheduled to prove Monday to the judge she was capable of identifying objects handled by the person who attempted the burglary.

Hints From Heloise

by Heloise Cruse

Dear Heloise:

I wonder if other readers have found as many uses as I have for those wonderful plastic bags from the drycleaners?

We cut them into small strips and use the strips to tie plants to the stakes in our garden. The plastic will give a little, not cut the stem of the plant, and is practically invisible.

I use the bags to wrap items to be put in storage . . . . such as books, picture albums, lampshades, etc. The bags protect them from dust and moisture.

We use them as drop-cloths before painting, as the paint will not seep through the plastic as it sometimes does when using newspapers.

We slip our folding lawn chairs into them for storing in the fall, and put them up on the rafters (out of the reach of children) in the garage. Keeps dust out of the canvass and plastic seats.

I could go on and on, but just thought I would mention the uses others might not have tried.

Bernice Holmes

Dear Gals:

Bernice has listed some wonderful uses for the drycleaning bags, but I want to CAUTION you again:

Keep the bags out of the reach of children, and when you are ready to discard them knot them up TIGHTLY so that a child cannot untie them.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

We bought a scrap of Formica from a cabinet shop and put it under the sink.

It makes an easy surface to clean.

The scrap was very inexpensive because it was the piece they had cut out to leave space for a sink when laying a Formica counter top.

Dear Heloise:

I feel I must share this gem with all of your readers:

I sewed a piece of ribbon, about two inches long, just inside my granddaughter's bonnet, at the back of the neck.

Now, the bonnet can be hung on a hook or over a coat hanger.

I only wish I had thought of this idea when my boys were small and wore caps.

I tip my cup of tea to all you wonderful coffee sippers.

B. Cerwinsky

Dear Heloise:

In my experiences as a men's clothing salesman, I have seen a lot of innovations in men's suits, but I thought this one was the greatest:

For security purposes, my customer had a zipper sewn across the inside pocket of his suit coat.

He told me when traveling abroad, he keeps his passport in this pocket

Phillip Morris

And why wouldn't this be a wonderful idea for women who travel a lot, too? They could have a zippered pocket sewn inside their coats and keep not only their passport and ticket, but also their traveler's checks or anything of value in this pocket.

It's so easy to lose a purse and this way they wouldn't have to worry about becoming stranded.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

To keep plants from falling or being blown off the ledge on our porch, I have put a long, thin nail (hammered it into the wood) in the ledge, and fit the hole of the flower pot over the nail.

I find it very satisfactory.

To Eliminate Agent

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) —The New York Central Railroad will eliminate the job of a Watertown ticket agent, paid $114 a week to answer three or four telephone inquiries a day.

The Public Service Commission today authorized the Central to discontinue the service.

The line discontinued passenger service on its Syracuse-Watertown branch in 1961. It kept a ticket agent at the freight depot to answer telephone inquiries.

The railroad told the PSC it could save the agent's $6,000-a-year salary without inconvenience to the public.

Lawyer, 33, Gets Chief Counsel Job From Governor

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) —Gov. Rockefeller today named a 33-year-old lawyer as his chief counsel, one of the top posts in governor's cabinet.

Robert R. Douglass was promoted to the $28,875-a-year job from his present position as first assistant counsel.

He succeeds Sol Neil Corbin, who resigned to resume the private practice of law in New York City. Corbin, 39, had been counsel since June 1962.

Douglass, formerly of Binghamton and now of Manhattan, became first assistant to Corbin last December.

The new counsel was associated for five years previously with the Binghamton law firm of Hinman, Howard and Kattell. A senior official in that firm is George L. Hinman, Republican national committeeman from New York and one of the governor's closest political advisors.

Douglass is a graduate of Dartmouth College and the Cornell University Law School.

The major duties of the governor's counsel include the screening of all bills passed by the Legislature before they are submitted to the chief executive.

The counsel's office also prepares legislation to implement the governor's annual recommendations to the Legislature.

TV Reviews, Best Bets

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The publicity department of CBS, in what was perhaps an unfortunate moment of truth, boasted to the trade paper Variety this week that it had set up a record total of 1,511 newspaper interviews in the course of drumming up interest in its new season of programs.

Presumably the other two networks have not been napping, so by a conservative count there have now been more than 4,000 interviews about the 95 or so television programs on the network schedules.

This reporter, after five weeks of intensive study, would like to report that there has been a slight change in the rigid form of the star interview this year.

Interviews about a television product as yet unseen by the public and often given by a star who has yet to be born are hard-sell spiels. Last season the inevitable theme was cast friendship: "We all get along so well that we stick together even away from the studio — even on weekends. Great bunch of people."

This, however, is the year of writer-love and artistic chemistry.

"Of course the whole thing starts with the writing," goes the new line. "I think that when you see our show you'll agree we've got great scripts from real pros who really know what we're trying to say."

The real problem of course is that there isn't much that anybody can say in advance about a television show except to assure the interviewer that it is positively great.

There is another slight change from last season, when it was the fashion to protest a little too much that television's primary creative concern was to "avoid the cliche."

"What we've got to find now," stoutly declared a veteran producer, "is a new word for cliche. Cliche has become a cliche."

He had just finished explaining why his new Western series, full of quick draws, fist fights, horses and ranchers' daughters was a brand new television concept.

Party Still in Bad Shape

Reporter Traces Conflicts Thwarting 1965 GOP Unity

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Republicans get together, they don't look it. Their policy coordinating committee, meeting here this week on how to win next year, seemed a little uncoordinated.

They'll have their hands full in 1966. At stake in the elections are 15 of the 17 GOP governorships, only 20 of the 33 held by Democrats.

In Congress 14 of the 32 Republican Senate seats are up but only 19 of the 68 Democratic seats. In the House all 435 seats are at stake. There the Republicans now number only 141.

Some of the things Republicans have said and done this year give an insight into their state of mind and the state of the party:

Burch Ousted

Jan. 22 — Hoping he could smooth things, Republicans made Ray C. Bliss of Ohio their national committee chairman to succeed Dean Burch, Barry Goldwater's man in 1964. Burch was pushed out.

March 28 — "The Republican party is in bad shape," said Leonard Hall, a former GOP chairman.

June 9 — Bliss predicted a 10 per cent boost in the party's strength in the next two years "if we stay united and do the job."

Illinois Voice

June 14 — A GOP House leader, Melvin R. Laird of Wisconsin, said his group might end support for President Johnson's Viet Nam policy. But the Republican Senate leader, Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, said his group would "uphold the hands of the President."

June 18 — Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, the House Republicans' No. 1 man, said victory was in the air for the GOP, adding: "We're moving forward rapidly."

June 18 — Bliss, complaining splinter groups drain off funds, said Goldwater's new-born conservative Free Society Association will hamper the quest for party unity and money. Goldwater denied it's a splinter group.

June 19 — Ford, who smelled victory the day before, said he believed the two-party system was in jeopardy from Johnson's use of power.

June 23 — Bliss fired his friend and aide, William Cody Kelly, after the GOP finance director, Frank J. Kovac, accused Kelly of rifling his desk and reading his correspondence. Kovac was one of the last of Goldwater's allies left in the high command.

Accused as Spying

Kelly told the National Committee he broke into the desk because he suspected Kovac of spying for Goldwater and that working at GOP headquarters was more dangerous than fighting war.

June 23 — The recently formed American Conservative Union proclaimed itself a "think tank" to increase Republican seats in the House. Its leadership denied it was a splinter group.

June 29 — Bliss, sounding less optimistic than on June 9, said the National Committee was "not cocky" about the party's chances next year.

Ego Quenchers

July 28 — Denison Kitchell, president of Goldwater's Free Society Association, hit at two Republican governors, George Romney of Michigan and New York's Nelson A. Rockefeller. He said their party efforts "have never gone much beyond service to their own ambitions."

Aug. 19 — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said it was "all rot" that there wasn't any rift between him and Johnson on the U.S. military commitment in Viet Nam.

Aug. 24 — House Republicans issued a "white paper" critical of Johnson's handling of the Vietnamese war. Senate Republicans didn't join them.

Aug. 30 — Goldwater said his FSA will help the party. Romney and former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York said such an organization tends to weaken the party.

There was irritation over Goldwater's previous charge that the 17 Republican governors are promoting a splinter group by opening a campaign headquarters in Washington.

And Bliss, who took a dim view of splinter groups, said he is fed up with controversy over them, will work with any that help elect Republicans.

Heir to $3 Million

UTICA, N. Y. (AP) — A 73-year-old woman, is the sole heir to the $3 million estate of Walter Pratt of Boonville.

Miss Hazel Northam of Brooklyn, was named heir to the Central New York industrialist's estate, according to papers filed in Surrogate Court Monday.

Pratt, who died June 13, 1961, owned the Island Paper Co. of Carthage and held a controlling interest in the Moyer-Pratt Paper Mill in Lyonsdale.

Knights to Hold Charity Ball on Oct. 9, Armory

The Knights of Columbus Kingston Council No. 275 will sponsor its annual charity ball this year Oct. 9 at the New York State Armory on Manor Avenue.

Proceeds of the dance, known as the Golden Ball are donated to charity organizations of all faiths and to the many area youth programs.

An additional feature of the 1965 affair is the Knights' sponsoring of an advertising booklet. The organization is currently soliciting the financial support of a number of area business firms.

Entertainment at the dance will be furnished by a New York City floor show.

The fantastic dod bird, once native to the island of Mauritius in the Indian Ocean, was descended from a pigeon. The turkey-sized bird survived on the island until 1681, when it succumed to destruction by man and his animals, particularly pigs.

Report Resnick's Son RecoveringFromBurns

Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick said today that his son, David, is recovering nicely from burns suffered in a camping accident and wished to thank all of his friends for their inquiries concerning the boy's welfare.

David, age 7, was burned on the arms and face when a "magic trick" exploded in a campfire. He was hospitalized with first and second degree burns at the Horton Hospital, Middletown. Congressman and Mrs. Resnick were with the boy almost constantly.

David is now home in Ellenville, in good spirits, and looking forward to school in Washington, D. C., this fall.

Check on Firm Names

NEW YORK (AP) — Starting Wednesday, state law will forbid companies from suggesting that they are agents of the federal or New York state governments.

The statute was enacted by the 1965 legislature. The law authorizes the secretary of state to deny charters to companies which filed applications with misleading business names.

NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

2 Held for Assault

Two local youths were arrested Monday by Senior Investigator Michael Lisman of the the Lake Katrine substation on charges of second degree assault and attempted first degree rape. Dennis Corkery, 20, of Saugerties, and Vincent A. Rinaldi, 18, of Kingston, were turned over to the South Glens Falls police under a charge lodged at West Moreau, Saratoga County.

Eastern States Exposition Will Run Sept. 18-26

WEST SPRINGFIELD, Mass. — With the opening day of the Eastern States Exposition (September 18-26) only three weeks away, a total of 1,548 cattle have been entered in the competition for more than $60,000 in prize money, it was announced today by Exposition Board Chairman R. DeWitt Mallary.

Entries in both the senior or "open show" and 4-H competitions are now officially closed. There are 1,203 animals in the open-show competition, of which 236 are beef-cattle and the rest dairy animals. The 4-H Baby Beef attracted 120 entries and the 4-H dairy cattle show 125.

Along with the rest of the Exposition, the livestock department is sporting something of a new look this year. The always popular 4-H Baby Beef auction has been shifted from a tent adpacent to the Youth Center to the Mallary Arena, and the usual Tuesday time moved from 1 p. m. to 4 p. m. These changes have been effected, according to Livestock Superintendent C. Cris Bridges, to enable more persons to witness the Baby Beef Auction.

He noted that last year many of those who wished to witness the auction were unable to get into the packed tent. Baby Beef judging will take place Monday night in Mallary Arena, where the cattle will be quartered.

Explosive Device Stolen From Farm

An explosive warning device used to frighten birds and animals from the commercial corn fields was stolen from the Dennis Sheehan farm at Ruby Monday.

State police at the Lake Katrine sub-station issued a warning on the danger of the device. If fired at close range the device could do permanent harm to a person's hearing.

Trooper W. E. Wiedemann, who conducted the investigation at the Sheehan premises, stated that the device, valued at $75, is a carbide and water operated device which builds up a gas pressure which is fired with a heavy "bang". If operated by children or other persons at close range the device could be dangerous and harmful to the ear drum.

Car Hits Dog

When Gerald Kahn, 40, of Riverside Drive, New York, attempted to avoid a dog which ran in front of his car on Route 28 at Shokan Monday morning, the car struck the dog and overturned. The small car was traveling east on Route 28 at the time. The car landed on its roof with the driver suspended in mid-air by his seat belt. He sustained lacerations of the knees and right wrist. Kahn was taken to Kinston Hospital where he was treated and released. Trooper W. E. Wiedemann investigated.

Auburn Man Jailed In Automobile Death

AUBURN, N. Y. (AP)—Chester Hoffman of Auburn, has been sentenced to 200 days in jail in connection with an automobile accident that caused a companion's death.

James E. Walter, 18, of Auburn, died Monday from injuries suffered when thrown from the car in a crash on a rural road Saturday.

Hoffman was arrested by State Police and sentenced Sunday by Justice of the Peace Richard Pearce in Aurelius on charges of driving without a license, speeding and leaving the scene of an accident.

Best enforcement of the weights and measures laws for protection of the buying public was explored at Alfred University in sessions attended by Ernest L. The technical school on weights and measures supervison was conducted at the State University of New York Agricultural and Technical Institute at Alfred, for more than 80 State and local officials in that field. Special courses on August 24, 25 and 26 were sponsored jointly by the University, the Weights and Measures Bureau of the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets, and the National Bureau of Standards.

Ulster Library Slates Annual Meeting Sept. 9

The Town of Ulster Library Association will hold its annual election and yearly report meeting at 7:30 p. m. Thursday, Sept. 9, at the Chambers School Library.

Members of the board will be elected and new officers for the year selected by the board. The yearly report on the progress of the library will be given. All those who have donated to the library in recent building fund drives are eligible to vote. It is hoped a good turnout of interested townspeople will attend.

The library will be closed Labor Day, Sept. 6 and 7, and will reopen on Sept. 8 with fall hours the same as before. It will remain at the present location in Chambers School until completion of the new building. Fall hours beginning Sept. 8 will be Tuesday and Thursday evenings 7 to 8:30 p. m., Wednesday and Friday 3 to 4:15 p. m. and Saturday, 9:30 a. m. to 12 noon.

Ribbons and certifictes in the recent Treasure Hunt reading game were given out recently. However due to an emergency in the area the photographer was unable to attend. All those receiving an award or participating in the reading program should be at the Town Library in the Chambers School on Thursday at 2 p. m. when a picture will be taken.

The Town of Ulster Library had hoped to be relocated in its new building by Sept. 1. However the new deadline is around Columbus Day, with the shelving to be installed by Standard Wood Products of Chichester, the early part of October.

Hurricane Betsy Remains Static East of Florida

MIAMI, Fla., (AP) — Hurricane Betsy remained nearly stationary 900 miles east of Florida early today while weathermen considered whether to dilute her strength by seeding.

Gordon Dunn, head of the National Hurricane Center in Miami, said Betsy is out there "not bothering anyone."

Scientists with Project Stormfury flew to Roosevelt Roads, Puerto Rico, where a decision was to be made soon on an attempt to feed the hurricane silver iodide crystals.

Such crystals would, weathermen hope, condense moisture-laden winds to rain and thus break up Betsy's destructive formation. So far, hurricane seeding has not proven conclusively effective.

Dunn said the storm would remain mostly stationary until noon today then begin drifting to the northwest.

The Weather Bureau said Betsy posed no threat to land areas today or Wednesday.

Four Cheyennes Say U. S. to Win in Viet

STURGIS, S.D. (AP) — The Viet Nam war will turn out favorably for the United States, say four Cheyenne Indians who prayed and fasted four days as a peace gesture.

But the Indians say they don't expect to arrive at a full interpretation of their dreams until they've returned to their homes in Montana and Oklahoma. Their vigil ended Sunday.

They went to the top of Bear Butte, an historic shrine of the Cheyennes where their tribe has sent peace emissaries three tims before.

Asks Federal Aid For Pollution, Jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Samuel S. Stratton has asked the President for federal aid in halting water pollution and in combating unemployment in three Western New York counties.

The Amsterdam Democrat linked Ontario, Yates and Seneca counties as a planning region which, he said, should receive aid under the newly signed Economic Development Act.

The measure makes federal aid available to economically depressed communities that wish to build public works projects and attract new industry.

World News In Brief

Heading Formosa Army

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — President Chiang Kai - shek named new commanders for the Chinese Nationalist army and navy today. He replaced the admiral who was in charge when two Nationalist warships were sunk Aug. 6 in a sea battle with the Chinese Communists.

The official announcement said Adm. Liu Kwang-kai resigned his command position to become special administrative assistant to the chief of the general staff. Vice Adm. Fenb Chi-tsung, deputy commander in chief of the navy, was appointed to succeed Liu.

Gen. Kao Kuei-yuan, political warfare director in the defense department, was named commander in chief of the army succeeding Gen. Liu An - chi, who held the post for four years.

2-Year-Old Nation

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman marked Malaysia's second birthday today with a pledge "to ensure security in this region of Southeast Asia."

In a message to his nation, Rahman also told the newly independent state of Singapore that the "time for recrimination is past." He said it was essential to "work together for a bright and happy future."

Much of the statement was devoted to Singapore's breakaway from the Malaysian Federation only three weeks before the anniversary.

Seeks Space Unity

HONG KONG (AP) — The British-owned China Mail today questioned the huge costs of the U.S.-Russian space race "in a world populated to a large extent by hungry people."

"If America and Russia joined forces," the English language newspaper said in a front page editorial, "the cost would be halved and the task made easier."

Bullied Too Long

COVENTRY, England (AP)— Factory employes today continued an unofficial strike in support of a girl fellow worker fired for spending too much time in the powder room.

Reginald Clark, a strike organizer, said, "the management has been bullying our people for too long."

Stuffed tomatoes make a fine luncheon salad. Cut out the pulp from the tomatoes and rid it of juice and seeds; dice and mix with cooked green peas and mayonnaise. Return this mixture to the hollowed-out tomatoes and serve on salad greens with sliced hard-cooked egg.

The Other Day

We read that the Incas must have known how to soften stone. That is the only logical explanation of how they were able hundreds of years ago to cut through huge rocks, which they fitted together so neatly in their buildings at Cuzco, Peru, and other communities. Modern scientists know that some marine animals can make holes in hard rock under water. They believe it must be accomplished by acid secretions and other chemical action created by the creatures. It's just one more illustration of mysteries outweighing knowledge, but your knowledge of our OUTSTANDING VALUES can save you money!

He Has the Power

Johnson Decides Everything On Domestic, Foreign Policy

EDITOR'S NOTE — at times President Johnson's large frame seems to fill all of Washington. And in a sense, this is very nearly true. Here's the first of four articles that present a lively closeup of the President's ways, public and private.

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson probably would flare up at the idea that his is a one-man administration. Yet perhaps as much as any man who has occupied the White House, he is the government.

It is Johnson who has the power. And it is Johnson who ultimately decides on all the major and many minor moves on the chessboard of domestic affairs and foreign policy.

Whatever he is, Johnson has come up with an amazing mass of legislation to build what he calls the Great Society. He says his one overriding goal is lasting peace.

How does he operate?

This is a man who puts in many a 16-hour day practicing persuasion and what he might call enlightenment. He bounces from one chore to another in seemingly tireless fashion. It helps, though, to do it in shifts — there's a midafternoon nap.

He consults. He seeks consensus. He requests and receives advice. He schedules conference after conference — with members of Congress, governors, mayors, leaders in all sorts of fields — civil rights, education, business, labor, the professions.

As for those tales about his arm twisting, he dismisses them as fantasy. But he does some effective wheedling and needling, preferably in face-to-face chats or on the telephone.

The President can be a delightful host too. He is a frequent one. Never before have so many people seen so much of the White House so often — even to the presidential bedroom. There are big parties and little ones, out side and inside, and on boat rides down the Potomac.

And if Johnson bestows favors, maybe he can ask favors. If he receives one, he never fails to follow up with a word of appreciation. "That," says a member of Congress, "I like."

Yet this President at other times can be domineering and unforgiving; and he can resort to language blistering enough and profane and earthy enough to make an artillery sergeant shudder.

A staff he drives with an iron hand gets the brunt of the Johnson anger at times and yet gives him unswerving loyalty.

Reports got around that the President once gave former press secretary George E. Reedy a verbal rawhiding, then gave him a station wagon for Christmas. Johnson is supposed to have explained:

"You never want to give a man a present when he's up—you want to do it when he's down."

The President not only has power over his staff. He has power, period. It is a power backed by guile, skill, downright ability, and a know-how and experience in Congress and government unmatched by any person who rose to the presidency.

The power is based in part on the dimensions of Johnson's 1964 political triumph.

No Democrat since Franklin D. Roosevelt ran ahead of his party in a presidential race, as Johnson did last year. The victory was accompanied by solid Democratic majorities in Senate and House, and gratitude to Johnson for helping make things so.

Then, too, the landslide victory was a landslide loss for Barry Goldwater, the conservatives and a Republican party now wandering along in disunity.

In addition, by most measuring rods, Johnson has the weight of a large cross-section of public support behind him.

Next: Care of Congress.

Dear Abby . . .

Understandable Goof!

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: We met a nice-appearing gentleman at a party recently and our host introduced him as "Mister Blank." The man became indignant and said, "DOCTOR Blank, please!" Our embarassed host then corrected himself, half-apologetically, and left us with this "Doctor Blank."

Assuming he was an M.D., I asked, Do you specialize, Doctor?" He replied, "I am NOT a medical doctor. I am in the hardware business." He explained that he had EARNED (and he emphasized the word) a Ph.D. in Philosophy, which made him a doctor of phoilosophy and therefore he had as much right to the title of "doctor" as a physician. Is this true?

UNAWARE

DEAR UNAWARE: Very few Ph.D.'s who are not in education use their "doctor" titles, although they may if they wish. Your friend may require the services of a D.D.S. to help him get his foot out of his mouth.

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: Something bothers me. I am a working widow soon to retire. I support my mother, which I consider a privilege because she is a wonderful person. My children are married. Because I have been a good manager and have watched my pennies, I have been able to help my married children out with loans from time to time. One of my sons borrowed a sizable amount of money from me four years ago and not once has he mentioned this debt. If he'd only say, "Mom, I haven't forgotten you." Or, "I'm saving to pay you off one of these days," just to let me know that he is aware of this debt. He and his wife are buying a lovely home and they have much nicer furniture than I have. They have also just bought a new car. I am not hard up for money, Abby, but I would feel much better toward this son if he would only acknowledge his debt. I would also feel like doing so much more for his children than I have of late. Should I mention it?

FORGOTTEN MOM

DEAR MOM: YES!

DEAR ABBY: I think it's very nice to be a devoted mother and grandmother, but please say a word about a place for everything in this regard.

A woman in our office bores everybody to death with talk and snapshots of her children and grandchildren. When she sends a card for any occasion, she puts not only HER name on the card, but also her husband's, children's and grandchildren's. Now that's pretty nauseating. When her 17-year-old daughter picks her up at work, the girl will come sometimes two hours early and get in everybody's way, walking around, giggling and asking questions. Don't tell me to tell the office manager. I AM the office manager. But this woman has been here many more years than I, and I hesitate to fire her even though I have repeatedly warned her about this, but to no avail. Now what?

OFFICE MANAGER

DEAR MANAGER: To whom are you responsible for the efficiency of the office personnel? Take it up with your superior. Time wasted is money squandered in any organization. Seniority or no, the boss will be on your side.

• • • •

CONFIDENTIAL TO WALTER: Take a little more time. Those who never have the time to do a job properly the first time always seem to find the time to do it over.

Problems? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Advises on Water

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Two U.S. officials say ore than 18 million fish were killed by water pollution in the United States last year.

There were 485 separate episodes of fish killings by pollution in 40 of the 50 states, said the report of A. F. Bartsch and William N. Ingram of U.S. Public Health Laboratories at Corvallis, Ore., and Cincinnati, Ohio, respectively. They reported to the World Congress of Limnology, the study of lakes and streams.

The Kiel Canal connects the Baltic with the North Sea.

Florida Stamp Issued

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP) — A five-cent postage stamp commemorating the 400th anniversary of Florida's discovery has been issued. The stamp features a Spanish explorer in flowing cape holding a sword aloft. The stamp is red, yellow and black in color.

Professor Defends Strikes in Opinion

ITHACA, N. Y. (AP) — A Cornell University professor defended strikes today as the best method of giving workers an effective voice in resolving labor-management disagreements.

Donald E. Culletin, of the School of Industrial and Labor Relations, said "the precise role of the strike in collective bargaining remains widely misunderstood."

Cullen cited what he termed a widespread belief that strikes "would be unnecessary if the parties negotiated in good faith and made their decisions on reason rather than force."

Cullen, writing in a school publication, said, "This counsel is about as helpful in labor disputes as it is in conflicts between buyers and sellers or Negroes and whites. . ."

He said most men try to act reasonably and in good faith, "but this standard of conduct inevitably means different things to different people."

Cullen also criticized newspapers for their handling of strike news.

"Editorial writers express regret that a strike resulted from 'the union's rejection of the employer's last-minute offer' few editorialists ever describe a strike as resulting from 'the company's rejection of the union's last - minute offer," he added.

Kathleen Kennedy Alert at Hospital

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 14-year-old daughter of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy was making satisfactory progress today in recovering from injuries suffered in a fall from a horse.

Kathleen was riding in a Massachusetts horse show Sunday when her horse fell. A medical bulletin issued from the offices of her father, New York's Democratic senator, said she was "both conscious and alert."

The girl, reported to be suffering from a concussion, bruises and "some internal bleeding," was admitted to Cape Cod Hospital, at Hyannis, Mass.

SMU Appoints Negro

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Southern Methodist University has announced the appointment of its first Negro faculty member. He is Dr. William S. Willis Jr., a former faculty member at Columbia University. He will be an assistant professor in the sociology - anthropology department.

A Busy House Anticipates School Opening

GRAFTON, N.D. (AP) — "Things are pretty bunched up at times," said Willis Puppe, no doubt anticipating the first day of school today with even more delight than the average parent.

Puppe and his wife, who have four children of their own, have taken on the care of 11 nieces and nephews.

The children's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Harlow, were killed in an automobile accident July 30. Harlow was Walsh County auditor.

Numbed by the loss of their parents, the children spent most of August with relatives. Now the Harlows, from 1-year-old Jay to Melanie, 13, are back in their Grafton home.

So are Puppe and his family, including a 7-months-old infant.

Today the juvenile population of the house will be sharply reduced during the daylight hours when nine Harlows and two Puppes troop off to school.

Puppe, 33, a truck driver from Drayton, N.D., and his wife, 30, have been here a week "getting things organized."

With 15 children in a four-bedroom house things get a mite crowded at times, and a bit hectic.

Mr. and Mrs. Puppe don't know how long they'll be able to remain in Grafton. Other relatives are ready to step in if necessary. Grandma, Mrs. Harry Harlow, is lending a hand.

Volunteer workers coordinating an orphans' fund report that it now totals nearly $9,000, plus $1,825 reportedly contributed at Dellwood, Mo., a suburb of St. Louis.

Technically, the Harlow children are wards of the state. The question of who gets custody will be decided by District Judge Glenn K. Swanson.

Talks Due Today On Seaway Contract

MONTREAL (AP) — Talks were scheduled to resume today in efforts to avoid a threatened strike on the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Employes claimed in a meeting Friday with Seaway officials that the Seaway Authority was not honoring the contract in connection with contracting work and seniority rights.

The dispute involves about 300 electricians, linesmen, maintenance workers and machinists from Montreal Harbor to Sault Ste. Marie, all members of Local 320, Canadian Brotherhood of Railway and General Workers.

spark plug life

(AMOCO® is the only lead-free premium gasoline in America.)

"At 16,000 miles, I pulled the spark plugs out of my '52 Nash Ambassador—it had the big engine—and laid 8 new ones beside the old ones. Except for a little bit of tarnishing, you couldn't tell the difference. That car went on to give me 84,000 trouble-free miles and I used nothing but AMOCO Gasoline. I truthfully am sold on it and wouldn't use anything else in my present car." Thomas G. Tucker, Baltimore County Police Officer

AMOCO Gasoline is not a "me too" gasoline. It contains no lead. It is the only lead-free gasoline for your car and this important refining difference is Certified. Once you try lead-free AMOCO, you'll decide that it's The Only One for you, too.

Another plus: The American FINAL/FILTER. All gasolines pick up tiny impurities in transit and in storage. But when you "fill 'er up filtered" at American Oil Dealers, these contaminants are stopped right at the pump nozzle by the American FINAL/FILTER.

CONVALESCENT HUSBAND NEEDS HIS SLEEP

Q: My husband is recuperating from a heart attack. He is well on the road to recovery but he still has to be very careful and get plenty of rest. Quite often friends will stop by for an evening to visit and sometimes they stay on past my husband's bedtime. I think when this happens he should excuse himself and go to bed. He thinks it would be very rude to do this and actually force them to leave. I would appreciate suggestions you may have to offer as to a proper and tactful way to handle this situation.

A: It will be quite proper, and your friends will surely understand, if you say to your husband, "Henry, you know the doctor's orders. It's your bedtime. Say good-night and hurry off to bed. Helen and John will stay on to keep me company."

A Widow's Wedding Ring

Q: Is it ever acceptable for a widow to transfer her wedding and engagement rings to her right hand? I am trying, psychologically, to move out of my one year period of mourning and to begin a new life in another community. As long as I wear my rings on my left hand I feel that I do not leave my life open to new attachments. I feel a tremendous loyalty to my deceased husband and would not want to dishonor his memory.

A: Transferring your rings to your right hand will be quite all right and will in no way dishonor the memory of your deceased husband.

At An Informal Evening Gathering

Q: When invited to an informal evening gathering at a friend's house, is it permissible for a man to wear slacks and a sport shirt?

A: Not unless these clothes are customarily worn to evening gatherings by the men in his community, or he is told by the host that he may wear slacks and a sport shirt.

TEENAGE PRAYER BOOK IS PUBLISHED

The anthology of poetry and prose from Biblical times to the present will be published on October 11 by Macmillan. It has been prepared by the editors of Seventeen Magazine who believe that "prayer and poetry are the essance of the best in the human spirit."

The book contains religious expressions of all faiths by poets and philosophers, scholars and statesmen throught history. Literary works range from Michelangelo and Milton to Cummings and Phyllis McGinley; statesmen's selections from William Penn and Abraham Lincoln to Dag Hammarskjold and President Kennedy; religious writings from the Old and New Testaments and the Koran to the Torah and Buddhist scriptures.

In her preface to the new anthology, Enid A. Haupt points out that "The movements in the religious world today to unite mankind in a true brotherhood of faith and love make this book particularly timely . . . The hundreds of prayers submitted by students . . . show clearly that young people want to make the world a better place."

My personal note — it might do a lot of good if ADULTS would read this book!

CAREERS IN FASHION FOR WOMEN

Career possibilities in the State's largest industry — fashion — are being portrayed through September 6 at the State Exposition in Syracuse. A special display, created by the Fashion Institute of Technology for the New York State Commerce Department Woman's Program exhibit in the Harriet May Mills Building, pictures some of the careers in fashion and the training required.

The Fashion Institute of Technology is a two-year college in New York City devoted to the preparation of young men and women for creative and and management positions in the textile and apparel industry. It is under the sponsorship of the State University, the New York City Board of Education and the Educational Foundation for the Apparel Industry.

Sixty-four different careers are listed in a new Woman's Program "Careers in Fashion" leaflet available at the exhibit. Written by the Institute's vice president and New York Woman's Council member, Shirley Goodman, the leaflet indicates that fashion and its related fields offer opportunities for a wide variety of abilities and talents. A folder describing the Fashion Institute is also available. Detailed information about the Institute may be obtained by writing: Woman's Program, Department of Commerce of New York State, 112 State Street, Albany, N. Y.

POCKET SQUARES: A DASH OF FASHION

Speaking of fashions, 'the men exhibiting a new flare — two handkerchiefs with business and casual outfits, according to the American Institute of Men's Boys' Wear—"one to show and one to blow."

Silk squares are becoming very popular. Correct with business clothes, casual outfits and sports clothes, the silk squares are now also cinsidered acceptable when used in the breast-pocket of a tuxedo. With business or casual outfits, however, avoid exactly matching ties and pocket squares. We are told men should try complementing the color scheme of their outfits rather than trying for perfect matches.

For both formal day and evening wear, however,—only white handkerchiefs are used.

Vests are also gaining in popularity. About them, actor Forrest Tucker says, "I like to wear vests. They're very useful because they have four pockets and they're very good for the health—they keep the stomach warm, which prevents colds."

Now, really!!

Did Giants Weaken Club for Quarterback?

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — After apparently deciding that rookies could not move into the first string quarterback's job left open by Y.A. Tittle's retirement, the New York Giants today hope one can take over in the defensive backfield to replace the departed Erich Barnes.

Dissatisfied by the exhibition showings of Michigan's Bob Timberlake and second-year men Gary Wood and Henry Schichtle, the Giants went shopping around the National Football League for an experienced quarterback.

They came up with 10-year veteran Earl Morrall in a three-cornered deal Monday but it cost them two first stringers to get the 31-year-old signal caller from Detroit.

First they sent Barnes, an eight-year veteran, to Cleveland for linebacker Mike Lucci and a future draft choice. Then they packaged Lucci with offensive guard Darrell Dess and another draft choice to the Lions for Morrall.

"Morrall is the quarterback we feel can help our club develop," Coach Allie Sherman said after the deal was completed. "He should help us speed our rebuilding program."

The Giants were a dismal 3-10-2 last year after winning three straight Eastern Division championships. Tittle, hampered by injuries, suffered his worst season as a pro and retired after it was over.

Wood, the No. 2 quarterback behind Tittle last year, Timberlake, the All America rookie, and Schichtle, who spent last year on the taxi squad, were the top candidates for the first string job but all were found wanting in the Giants' exhibition games.

Name Fullmer Fighter of Month

NEW YORK (AP)—Don Fullmer of West Jordan, Utah, has been named fighter of the month by Ring magazine.

Fullmer, whose brother Gene was the former middleweight champion, gained the honor for his 10-round decision over welterweight king Emile Griffith. The victory gave Fullmer the World Boxing Association's American middleweight crown and ninth place in Ring's world middleweight rankings.

Fullmer replaced veteran Laszlo Papp of Hungary in the middleweight rankings. Papp and another veteran, Harry Scott of England, were dropped out of Ring's top 10 this month. Art Hernandez of Omaha replaced Scott as No. 10.

In the heavyweight division, former champion Sonny Liston slipped one notch from fourth to fifth place behind Cassius Clay, the current titleholder. Zora Folley of Chandler, Ariz., replaced Liston in the No. 4 slot.

Flint of Kingston and Ernest LeFevre of Hurley posted 57 per cent game to tie with Roy Wulff-I. H. Wheatcroft, Kingston, for honors on the East - West side.

Dr. and Mrs. John Olivet of Kingston were second on the North - South with 54 per cent. Third spot went to Carl Kunz, Kingston, and Henry Berleth, Woodstock, with 51 per cent. Robert Shea and Ben Sanchine, Poughkeepsie, placed third on East - West with 51 per cent.

The monthly Master Point game is scheduled at the Bridge Studio on Fair Street tonight at 8 o'clock.

A total of 65 players will report to Coach George Karras Wednesday when preseason football drills begin at Wichita State University. Included in the group are 21 letter men, plus several sophomores and transfers.

Donovan and Murtaugh Win Billiard Club League Honors

Buckman Bird Wins

A bird owned by Cecelia Buckman of Kingston won the fourth annual race from Deepwater, N. J., with a speed of 1145.891.

Second and third place went to birds owned by Tony Lanzerone of Highland with a speed of 1139.809 and 1139.108. Fourth place went to a pigeon owned by Frank Knox of LaGrangeville.

A race is scheduled this Sunday from Aberdeen.

To Use Flanker

Under new coach Johnny Pont, formerly of Yale, Indiana's football team will utilize a flanker back and rely heavily on the option series.

Jim Donovan and Jim Murtaugh compiled 814 points to win the championship of the Kingston Billiard Club League. Runnersup were Glen DeWitt and Bert Darrow with 757 points.

Wayne Terwilliger and Jim Ferrendino placed third with 749 points, with Frank Brooks and Clint Marallo getting 621.

In the final matches, Donovan and Murtaugh scored 75 points each in 150-75 victory over Bert Darrow (52) and Glen DeWitt (23).

Ferrendino (66) and Terwilliger (75) won over Frank Brooks (75) and Clint Marallo (0), 141 to 75.

Ferrendino had high run honors in the league with 17.

Minnesota Increases AL Margin

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Remember Harmon Killebrew?

He used to be the Minnesota Twins' leading slugger. But that was before he dislocated his left elbow. Now he can almost straighten his arm.

The Twins thought they would miss Killebrew, also a versatile infielder, in their battle for the American League pennant. If they have, though, it's not discernible. At least not in the standings.

When Killebrew was forced out of the line-up Aug. 2, Minnesota had a six-game lead. Now, nearly one month later, the Twins hold a seven-game margin following their 11-inning, 3-2 triumph over Detroit Monday night.

Earlier on the day of Killebrew's baseline accident, ace pitcher Camilo Pascual underwent surgery on his pitching arm for torn muscles.

The Twins were in trouble. Or so they thought. The other alleged contenders should be in such trouble.

Of 29 games since then, Minnesota has won 18 for a .621 percentage. That's slightly less than its over-all mark of .632.

Two major reasons why the Twins have maintained their comfortable margin are Al Worthington and John Klippstein, a pair of elderly relief pitchers.

Shutout Relief

They both pitched Monday night, shutting out the Tigers on three hits in the final five innings. They didn't walk anyone and struck out seven.

The Twins won in the 11th when Don Mincher singled, was sacrificed to second and raced home as Sandy Valdespino lined a two-out single off Larry Sherry.

In the only other game played, New York defeated the Los Angeles Angels 4-2. Rain washed out Cleveland at Kansas City, and there were no games scheduled in the National League.

Jack Cullen, now 3-2, scattered eight hits and singled in a run for the Yankees. Elston Howard socked a home run in the third inning, and Tony Kubek drove in a run in the fifth with a single, his first hit in 30 at-bats. Jim Fregosi singled across both Los Angeles runs.

Young-Partner Pro-Am Titlists

Claude Young, Winding Brook veteran, and his partner, Elliott Smith, fired a 64 to capture top honors in the Northeastern New York PGA's annual Pro-Amateur Championship Monday at Winding Brook Country Club in Valatie.

The Young-Smith team put together 31-33-64 on the par-70 layout. Young also shared a tie for second place and led the pro division with 37-34-71.

Bob Smith of Wolferts Roost was runnerup with 36-37-73.

PITCHING — Jack Cullen, New York, scattered eight hits as the Yankees downed the Los Angeles Angels 4-2.

BATTING — Don Mincher, Minnesota, drove in the first run with a single and scored the winning run after leading off the 11th inning with a single in the American League - leading Twins' 3-2 triumph over Detroit.

Koch Continues Sizzling Pace

MONTICELLO, New York — Art Koch is still smoking at Monticello Raceway. Currently holding one of the hottest hands at the mountain plant, Koch reached the winner's circle for the twelth time last night by taking the featured fifth race with Speedy Boy in 2:05.1.

The 50-year-old native of Huntington, Long Island, who also owns a breeding farm in Montgomery, has been winning races or finishing in the money at a torrid clip. Prior to last night's feature, he had the same average as leader Howard Beissinger's .402. The only difference was that Koch had not had enough starts yet to be ranked.

After the fifth, his average zoomed to .418 and if he continues to do so well, he could be a threat to Beissinger.

Last night, he sent Speedy Boy, whom he owns with Joan West of Montgomery, to the front immediately. Fred Bradbury then buzzed up on the outside with Spindletop's Best and Koch let him go but only for an instant. As soon as Bradbury was over to the rail, Koch came back out and again went to the front.

He was never again headed although Fanny Ringland and Driver Jim Grundy came close. Fanny Ringland missed catching Speedy Boy by a head as Franco Mickey finished third with Steve Inokai aboard.

The twin double at the Mighty M returned $1,460.20. Winning combination was 2-4-3-1. The Perfecta paid $41.20. Winning combination was 1-6

A crowd of 4,785 was on hand to wager $297,735.

Berra Seen Likely To Manage Mets in '66

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Yogi Berra, fired as manager by the New York Yankees last year, may become the manager of the New York Mets next year.

The dramatic but hardly unexpected resignation of Casey Stengel Monday, effective at the end of the season, left the door open for Berra to step in and take charge of the National League cellar dwellers in 1966.

There is always the possibility that the job will be given to Wes Westrum, who has served ably as interim manager of the Mets during Stengel's month-long absence.

Most observers believe, however, that Westrum, short of pulling a miracle — like bringing the Mets home in ninth place — will be returned to his bullpen duties next year with Yogi elevated from his present job as first base coach.

Fractured Hip

Stengel has not managed the Mets since July 24, when he fell and fractured his left hip. Although an operation was successful, Casey has been confined to a wheelchair, occasionally allowed to walk with the use of a cane, as he did at Tuesday's press conference.

His decision to quit came on the advice of Dr. Peter LaMotte, the club physician who performed the successful operation.

"Casey," Dr. LaMotte said, "It's a miracle that you can walk today. It was a most serious operation. I cannot take the responsibility if you insist on returning as manager.

"The traveling the job entails, even the act of going out to the mound to take out a pitcher, would be just too much for a man of your age and in your condition."

It was not until last Wednesday that Casey finally made up his mind. In a meeting with George Weiss, the club president, Stengel said:

"George, I got to face it. You can't count on me for next year." Weiss, who has worked with Stengel for 17 years, including one year at Kansas City and 12 with the Yankees, accepted Casey's resignation with mixed emotions.

The next night Weiss met with the Mets' Board of Directors and recommended a job in an executive capacity for the 75-year-old baseball genius.

Casey was given a two-year contract to serve as vice president in charge of scouting the West Coast territory.

Set Split Season For Duck Hunters

The New York State Conservation Department Monday announced a 45-day split gunning season on ducks and coots for most of the state.

For the upstate area, except the Lake Champlain zone, the split season on the birds will be Oct. 16-20 and Jan. 1-9. A 70-day straight season on geese and brant runs from Oct. 16-Dec. 24.

On Long Island, including a portion of Westchester County south of the Hutchinson River Parkway, the split season on ducks and coots runs from Oct. 16-30 and Dec. 10-Jan. 8. The season on geese and brant will be Oct. 16-Nov. 24 and Dec. 10-Jan. 8.

For the Lake Champlain area the season will run for 50 days straight on ducks and coots Oct. 16-Dec. 4 and a 70-day season set for geese and brant from Oct. 16-Dec. 24.

A department spokesman said the Lake Champlain zone coincides with Vermont's season and is designated as lying east of the main line of the Delaware and Hudson Railroad from the Canadian border to Whitehall and north of the D and H branch line from Whitehall to the Vermont border.

In the light of Wes Westrum's brilliant handling of the Mets, an interesting thought occurs.

Will not the Mets management be tempted to make Casey Stengel's convalescence permanent, if the Go-Go boys continue their sprightly play?

When did Casey ever score three straight wins against the Dodgers and Sandy Koufax, no less?

Westrum, the old Kingston catcher (Poughkeepsie papers, please do not note), appears to have instilled a spirit and stability previously sadly lacking in the Mets. He seems to have revitalized Joe Christopher and the young pitchers are acting like young Bob Groves and Carl Hubbels.

Will it last? Probably not but we know one thing. Westrum has proved he has the stuff to be a manager. The Mets brass may ponder that for a while.

• Triple Crown Eludes Willie

Willie Mays is now all alone in fifth place in the all-time Home Run Derby with 494. His 17 home runs in August is a new National League record and by midnight tonight he may have tied Rudy York's 18 in the American League. But Willie, generally regarded as the best all around player in the majors now that Mickey Mantle is on the decline, has never won the Triple Crown—batting average, home runs and runs batted in. Mantle did it once—in 1956—with .353 batting average, 52 home runs and 136 runs batted in. Mays has never led the National League in RBIs. Mays reached his all-time high in that department with 141 but that was the year Tommy Davis of the Dodgers paced the league with 153. In 1955, Willie knocked in 127 tallies. Duke Snider was top man that year with 136.. If you think LA isn't hurtin' without Tommy Davis, remember he has led the team the last three years in RBIs with 153-88-88.

• How About These Clubs

Now that a new bowling season gets away from the barrier, may we suggest a few items that might brighten up the long, long campaign. How about an active, organized 600 Club for women and 700 Club for men with a special tournament for each some time during the season. . . . We also think there should be Hudson Valley BPA eliminations for women for the National All Star. Can anyone give us one good reason why there shouldn't be a woman's elimination? . . . Is this the year when Hilda Murphy really makes her threat to "retire" stick? . . . Will woman's bowling produce a new "find" this year in the Murphy-Schatzel-Balash-Rawding mould? The internal politics of the KBA doesn't interest us in the least. But so far as we are concerned, Al Sonnenberg was the best public relations director the KBA ever had. We're sure that the relationship between the press and KBA will remain at a high level now that thoroughly competent Joe Mannello is in the secretary-treasurer's spot. Transition of one administration to another is seldom an easy procedure for the KBA. The history of the first two years of the organization—a valuable historical document—was lost in the shuffle of cardboard boxes several years, if we recall correctly.

• Leave It to the Kids

An incident in the recent Junior golf tournament at Woodstock points up the fact that kids are hep to the rules and don't hesitate to invoke them in competition. In a medal tournament, the question of hitting out of turn came up. One youngster was "called" and charged two strokes. It's a rare rule the average adult doesn't know exists. The kid didn't deserve the penalty. The rule on "honors" (right to tee off first) stipulates that if a player usurps the right to tee off first on the tee in match play his opponent may require him to replay the shot. In stroke (medal) play no penalty shall be incurred if a player plays out of turn. Just bad manners or a slip of the mind. The adult males are great for telling you in the tap room what violations and indiscretions were committed out on the course.. Seldom, if ever, do they "call" one in competition.

Robert Jones, III In Amateur Play

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Robert T. Jones III, son of golf's immortal Bobby, will have one big plus going for him when he makes his fourth try at the U.S. Amateur Golf Championship, a title his father won five times.

He won't have to play Jack Nicklaus.

Jones, a Pittsfield, Mass., soft drink distributor, won one of the qualifying spots for the amateur championship with a shaky 78-74—152 on the par 70 Pine Brook Country Club course in Weston, Mass., Monday.

"I'm just a duffer, a weekend golfer," Jones said. "I don't spend as much time at it as I'd like."

His record, however, indicates he's a very good weekend golfer.

Among other achievements, he won the Atlanta, Ga. city title in 1948 — the one that started his father on his way to fame — has been the medalist in the qualifying for the Massachusetts amateur, got past preliminary rounds for the U.S. Open, and three times before has qualified for the National Amateur

The last was in 1959. He was eliminated in the first round by Nicklaus, who was making his move toward his first major title.

This year the National Championships at the Southern Hills Country Club in Tulsa, Okla., Sept. 15-18, will be at stroke instead of match play for the first time.

Only 18 players — this country's 10 Walker Cup team members and eight of the 10 British Walker Cuppers — are exempt from qualifying and have spots in the final field of 150.

U. S. Athletes Pace World Game

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The seventh World Maccabiah Games end a nine-day run today with the United States' huge squad the biggest winner once again.

This has been customary since the Jewish Olympics became an almost global affair. And, according to their customs, the Americans will leave over huge amounts of equipment to help Israel continue its fast developing sports program.

The closing ceremony figured to attract close to a capacity crowd of 50,000 at Ramat Gan Stadium. Departing from tradition, the organizers scheduled several championship events before the ceremony begins.

Finals were to be held in the blue ribbon 1,500-meter run and the men's 400 and 1,600-meter relays. In addition, Canada's Bill Crothers, the world's premier 800-meter runner at present, ran in an exhibition 800.

The Americans, winners of 11 of 18 events in men's track and field, figured to breeze in both relays. The 1,500 could be a romp for Britain's Ray Roseman unless American Bill Morgan runs.

Morgan, of San Francisco, became a double winner and double meet record-breaker by taking the 5,000 meters in 14:23.6 Monday. Last Thursday, he ran away with the 10,000.

Hodgins in Hambletonian, Set to Drive Perfect Freight

By ED PALLADINO
Freeman Sports Staff

Clint Hodgins returns to the harness racing wars for the first time since July 6 when he travels to Du Quoin, Illinois Wednesday to drive Perfect Freight in the 40th renewal of the famed Hambletonian, the "World Series" for three-year-old trotters.

A fleet son of Star's Pride-Pebble Hanover, Perfect Freight has been doing most of his racing this season on Monticello Raceway and won four of his first five tries at the track, including one in a fast 2:05.

The ABC Freight Stable youngster has drawn the post nine position in the first heat of the classic and is one of the longshots in the field of 11. Hodgins, the 58-year-old star reinsman, will be in the sulky after making a rapid recovery from a fractured spine and a left shoulder separation from an accident at Monticello.

After Hodgins was injured, Fred Bradbury and Harold Story reined Perfect Freight in his trips to the post. His best effort at the Mighty M was a second place finish in 2:03 3/5. The horse also finished second to Hambletonian favorite Noble Victory in the Yonkers Futurity Prep, going in 2:02 2/5.

Record A Possibility

Talk of a record mile heat in the $122,245 Hambletonian is being avoided but must be considered a possibility.

The veteran Stanley Dancer, still seeking his first win in the premier harness racing stake, has been listed as the 1-2 favorite with his great trotter, Noble Victory. This in Dancer's sixth Hambletonian.

Noble Victory has a strong list of 20 victories and a clocking of 1:59 3/5, made two weeks ago in Springfield, Illinois.

Armbro Flight, a big, black filly piloted by Joe O'Brien, twice a Hambletonian winner, is a second choice in the betless race at 3-1.

Have Long Streaks

Neither of the favorites have been extended in compiling sensational streaks. Armbro Flight lost to Noble Victory last fall but has not raced against colts since then in winning 22 straight. The filly's best clocking of the season is 2:00 3/5. This time, second only to Noble Victory's, was matched by Marengo Hanover, driven by John Simpson.

Marengo Hanover, the only horse to finish ahead of Noble Victory in two years, is a 10-1 choice.

Of the 11 starters in the race, only Perfect Freight and Evans Hanover have raced at Monticello. The latter won the E. T. Gerry Trot at the Sullivan County oval in 2:05 4/5.

In order to win the Hambletonian, a horse has to capture two heats. Those in the know say that Noble Victory will capture two straight. However, Hodgins has been known as a Master at winning big races. They don't come any bigger than the Hambletonian.

Manry Back Home After Ocean Venture

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert Manry, who sailed the Atlantic eastward in the smallest boat to make the crossing, returned today in one of the world's largest ships.

Manry brought the 13½-foot Tinkerbelle back with him aboard the Queen Mary, which docked today.

The Cleveland newspaperman sailed alone from Falmouth, Mass., to Falmouth, England, in 78 days. The return voyage took 5½ days.

Asked how he liked returning on the superliner, Manry said "big boats are very pleasant."

Manry, 47, was accompanied by his wife, Virginia; his daughter, Robin, 14; and son, Douglas, 11.

LEGAL NOTICE

NOTICE OF NAMES OF PERSONS APPEARING AS OWNERS OF CERTAIN UNCLAIMED PROPERTY
Held by
THE STATE OF NEW YORK
NATIONAL BANK

The persons whose names and last known addresses are set forth below appear from the records of the above-named banking organization to be entitled to unclaimed property in amounts of twenty-five dollars or more.

AMOUNTS DUE ON DEPOSITS
Frieda Friedrich, Phoenicia, New York
Carrie F. Hurley, RD 1, Box 397, Kingston, New York
Kenneth C. Perry, RD 3, Box 267, Saugerties, New York
Mary Wilson as Committee of Charles Wilson, RD 2, Box 67, New Paltz, New York

A report of unclaimed property has been made to the State Comptroller pursuant to Section 301 of the Abandoned Property Law. A list of the names contained in such notice is on file and open to public inspection at the principal office of the bank, located at 301 Wall Street, in the City of Kingston, New York, where such abandoned property is payable.

Such abandoned property will be paid on or before October 31st next to persons establishing to its satisfaction their right to receive the same.

In the succeeding November, and on or before the tenth day thereof, such unclaimed property will be paid to Arthur Levitt the State Comptroller and it shall thereupon cease to be liable therefor.

A STEELY TUNE — Two members of the South Africa Police Band play the "Post Horn Gallop" on the barrels of rifles at Salisbury, Rhodesia. They are accompanied by an officer using a conventional horn. Their rifle barrels were fitted with mouthpieces.

Steel Situation At-a-Glance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here's how the steel industry contract talks now shape up:

The scence at the Executive office Building across from the White House where President Johnson can remain in easy contact with the negotiators he called in from Pittsburgh.

THE PRINCIPALS — I. W. Abel, president of the 450,000-member United Steelworkers of America (AFL-CIO), heads a six-man union team. R. Conrad Cooper, executive vice president of U.S. Steel Corp., leads a four-man industry team representing 10 companies. William E. Simkin, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, and other federal officials are expected to sit in.

THE GOAL — A new contract by 12:01 a.m. Sept. 9 ,the new strike time. A shutdown, previously scheduled for a minute past midnight Tuesday, would affect about 80 per cent of the nation's steel industry.

THE PROBLEM — Wages and benefits. Earlier this year the union won an 11.5-cent-an-hour hike pending agreement on a new contract within four months. The union is asking a 17.9-cent-hourly increase in each of three years. The industry's last offer was 13.5 cents an hour. President Johnson has said he expects settlement within White House wage-price guidelines that would limit the raise to 3.2 per cent with no price increase. That would mean about 14 cents an hour. Officials estimate that each penny means about $10 million a year in labor costs.

Federal Reserve Closely Watches Viet War Impact

WASHINGTON (AP) — The economic impact of the war in Viet Nam is being watched closely by U.S. money managers for possible inflationary tendencies, the head of the Federal Reserve System says.

William McChesney Martin told senators Monday "it has not gotten out of control yet. Our job is to watch things carefully."

Margin appeared before a Government Operations subcommittee which is studying economic and financial problems bearing on U.S. security.

Teenager Starts Party Business With Want Ads

Because Loa Kirk, a peppy 15 year old, had trouble finding a summer job, she used Want Ads to start her own business — giving parties for children.

Loa plans parties with themes such as Davy Crockett, fairyland, circus, and "plain old birthday". She furnishes decorations, prizes, favors and three hours of games and entertainment.

A bride of only a few months was at the airport to meet her husband when he returned from abroad. They were waiting for his luggage when the good-looking stewardess from the plane passed by.

Husband—Hi, Miss Tracy.

Wife—How do you happen to know her name?

He explained that it was listed, together with the names of the pilot and co-pilot, on the door of the cockpit.

The wife's next question was a classic which he could not answer.

Wife—Dear, what was the pilot's name?

Jury Has Worst Record on Road Fatals Since '31

ALBANY — Last month was the worst July since 1931 for highway deaths in New York State, the Department of Motor Vericles reported today.

Accident reports indicate that this July 287 deaths resulted from 241 crashes. The highest previous total of highway deatns for July was in 1931 when 302, including 118 pedestrians, died in motor vehicle accidents.

This year's July deaths, an increase of 11.2 per cent over those of July 1964, raise the total for the seven-month span of 1965 to 1,509 people killed, or 2.7 per cent more than the simiar period of 1964 when 1,469 died. Pedestrian fatalities for 1965 to date show a sizeable drop, however, from 529 last year to 429 this year or 18.9 per cent.

Accidents in New York City were responsible for the greatest increase in the July deaths over those of a year ago, 23.4 per cent. The jump there was from 64 to 79. Rural deaths also increased for the month, from 162 to 178, 9.9 per cent. Urban area deaths dropped from 32 to 30, but had little effect on the increase of from 258 last year to this year's figure of 287 statewide.

While the statewide number of deaths for the seven-month period is up by 40, there have been decreases in two geographical areas—New York City and other urban communities. New York City reports 17 fewer from the 427 of last year while the urban drop is seven. Rural areas are up by 7.7 per cent or from 827 to 891.

In pedestrian deaths, New York City has had 71 fewer or 23.5 per cent, than the 302 last year to date; urban areas have dropped one from 81 and rural areas from 146 to 118.

End Mishap Probe

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) The death of a 53-year-old woman whose automobile plunged through ice-coated Mariaville Lake last Thanksgiving night, was called accidental by a coroner today.

The body of Mrs. Marion McVee, of Albany, a school librarian, was discovered in her submerged automobile July 13 by workmen.

State Police said Mrs McVee apparently drove the vehicle by mistake onto the frozen lake from a parking lot.

Speed Is Cause Of One-Third Fatal Accidents

ALBANY—About one-third of the fatal accidents inNew York State are caused by excessive speed, the Department of Motor Vehicles reported today.

Motor Vehicle Commissioner William S. Hults reported that in 1964, 797 of the 2,517 fatal accidents were attributed to excessive speed.

"This does not always mean speed in excess of the legal speed limits," Commissioner Hults explained. "Excessive speed can apply to any situation in which the dirver selects a speed that is too fast for highway conditions. For example, 25 miles per hour could easily be an excessive speed on any icy highway or in a heavy fog.

"When a driver selects an excessive speed, or fails to adjust his speed to change in road conditions, then his control of the vehicle is impaired and a sudden emergency can throw the vehicle out of control," Commissioner Hults said. "The situation is further complicated by added danger—the faster you are traveling, the harder you will hit an object that blocks your path."

For proper selection of vehicle speed, Commissioner Hults advised drivers to consider the following factors, in addition to the legal speed limits.

Flow of traffic. The speed of the other cars traveling in your direction. If you travel too fast or too slowly, you will interrupt the flow of traffic and create hazardous conditions.

Visibility. You should always be able to stop within the area that you can see ahead of your car. In darkness or bad weather, do not overdrive your range of vision. Otherwise, you may be surprised by a sudden obstacle.

Pavement condition. Dry, paved roads generally do not give you any trouble, but when roads are wet or covered with snow or ice, you should select a speed that will enable you to stop and turn without skidding.

Vehicle condition. Defects in your vehicle that affect control, such as tires, steering, brakes, or shock absorbers, must be considered in selecting a safe speed.

Driver condition. If you don't feel well, or if you are tired or emotionally upset, you must consider these personal defects in selecting a safe speed.

Would Drop Ship Clause

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. J. W. Fulbright wants to cancel a requirement that 50 per cent of all U.S. wheat sold to Soviet bloc nations be shipped in American vessels.

The Arkansas Democrat told the Senate Monday he hopes the administration can persuade the maritime unions to drop their insistence on what he called that "short-sighted and negative policy...so that we may participate in these large sales of wheat to Russia."

Counsel Services Still Available To NYS Veterans

In the wake of misunderstanding that apparently exists as a result of recent statements concerning the curtailment of services by the United States Veterans Administration contact offices in Albany, Syracuse and Brooklyn, Frank V. Votto, State Director of Veterans' Affairs, today issued the following statement:

"I would like to assure the veterans, members of the Armed Forces as well as their dependents and survivors, that the closing of Veterans Administration facilities will not create any curtailment of services or the eliminateion of local New York State veterans counseling facilities available to these citizens.

"The New York State Division of Vetreans Affairs will continue to maintain, as it has for the past 19 years, fully staffed counseling offices. I am sure that the closing of these federal government facilities had a most disturbing affect on persons who have sought advice and assistance from the VA.

"I am certain however, that a visit to a counseling office of the State Division of Veterans' Affairs will reassure those individuals that they will never be forgotten and that counseling on all Veterans' benefits is readily available to them through the services of the State of New York.

"As State Director of Veterans' Affairs, I have a deep personal concern for our veterans and their dependents. The State of New York will utilize all the resources and facilities at its command in such a manner that action of the United States Government will not create a hardship on veterans and their families in New York State."

The veterans official pointed out that offices of the New York State Division of Veterans' Affairs are conveniently located in every county of the State and are open daily, Monday through Friday, and counseling, advice and assisteance on any problem pertaining to veterans and their families is continuously available.

Skin Normal Now After Operation Altering Heart

By RALPH DIGHTON

LOS ANGELES (AP) — For the first time in his 21 years, Ronald Hollett is beginning to think seriously about his future.

There wasn't much point in doing so before. Ronnie was born with heart trouble so severe his skin was always blue from lack of oxygen in the blood.

Today, after a first-of-its-kind operation by University of Southern California surgeons, his skin is a normal pink and his doctor says he has an excellent chance for a productive life.

"I keep looking in the mirror and I can't believe it's me," Ronnie said, before returning to his home at Waterford, Calif.

Dr. Jerome Harold Kay of USC says young Hollett is the first to have a new type of disc valve placed in his heart and the fourth to be operated on successfully for a rare defect of the valve between the upper and lower chambers on the right side of the heart.

The new valve is opened and closed by a dime-sized plastic disc which takes the place of the ball commonly used in artificial heart valves.

Developed through animal research in the past year, the disc valve is a third the size of the ball valve—a necessity in Hollett's case because the heart chamber in which it fits is abnormally small.

Because of the inborn defect, Ronnie's heart was never able to pump enough blood through his lungs to pick up an adequate supply of oxygen. Too much kept slipping back through the defective valve and not enough coursed onward.

Draft May Clamp Married Men by Spring of 1966

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The boss of U.S. Selective Service says the young men who rushed to tie the knot last week hoping to escape the draft may, after all, end up doing a hitch.

Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, speaking to civic and business leaders at a luncheon Monday, said married but childless men will be called up as soon as the manpower pool of single 19-year-olds falls short of quotas. That could come as early as next spring, he said.

Addressing himself to the many men who plunged into the sea of matrimony to meet President Johnson's draft-deferment deadline last Thursday at midnight, Hershey said:

"I believe they'll discover they didn't beat any deadline."

"I was amused," he said. "We'll get most of them — in four or five months."

He warned that Selective Service officials plan "to take a good look at the fellow who marries some girl and forgets to stay around and provide a home. We're interested in him."

In addition, he said, draft boards might soon decide to conscript students by giving "special exams" or taking a "percentage of certain classes."

Van Duzer Is Newcombe Chairman in Orange

In assuming the post of heading up the Newcombe drive for the State Senate nomination in the September 14th primary election in Orange County, Assemblyman Van Duzer said: "I am for Mr. Newcombe because he is, in my opinion, the best qualified man for the important office of State Senator."

The battle for the Republican State Senate nomination from the newly created 43rd Senatorial District covers all of Ulster, Sullivan and Greene Counties, and eight towns from Orange County.

To Continue Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Periodic U.S. talks with the Red Chinese through ambassadors in Warsaw, Poland, will continue despite a change in this country's envoys there, a State Department spokesman says.

President Johnson designated Postmaster General John A. Gronouski Sunday to replace Ambassador John Moors Cabot at Warsaw. The change will not affect plans for the talks, press officer Robert J. McCloskey told newsmen.

Find No Sabotage Trace in Plane Crash

HONG KONG (AP) — A U.S. Marine investigation team reported today there was no indication of sabotage in the Aug. 24 crash of a transport plane which killed 59 American servicemen returning to war duty in South Viet Nam.

The preliminary report also ruled out any operational error at Hong Kong's Kaitak Airport as responsible for the crash.

Investigators did not say what caused the four - engine C130 Hercules to twist off course just after takeoff and plunge into Hong Kong Bay.

Hearings Slated Thursday on Pet Protection Bill

Hearings on the Pet Protection Bill offered by Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick, (D-28th District) will be conducted Thursday by the Livestock Subcommittee of the House Agriculture Committee, the congressman announced today. The subcommittee is chaired by W. R. Poag, D., Tex.

Rep. Resnick of Ellenville recently called chances for the bill "greatly improved" with its transfer to the Agriculture Committee.

"Anyone who has testimony to offer bearing on the interstate shipment of dogs and other pets should contact my office immediately," the congressman said. The Resnick bill has no bearing on whether animals should be used for research, but is designed to protect pets from being picked up as strays or stolen by dealers who provide animals for research.

It was prompted by an interstate search for a missing dog, reportedly delivered to a farm in the Congressman's district.

The Resnick bill will authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to license all dog dealers selling to medical research facilities. It would also authorize the licensing of all medical facilities which make use of live animals.

The bill would also set standards of health and sanitation required to be met by dealers and laboratories. In addition, the Resnick legislation would make it mandatory that all dogs and cats would have to be held by any dealer for five business days after acquisition for medical purposes.

All records deemed necessary by the Secretary of Agriculture to prove the ownership of a dog would have to be held, under the bill's provisions, by the dealers and labs for two years. A uniform bill of sale will be provided if the bill passes. The bill makes the interstate transportation of stolen cats and dogs a federal offense with a penalty of a fine of $10,000 and or a sentence in jail of one year.
